BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Marietta, Ga., October 3.—(Special.) That the pretty blonde Mrs. Ruth Bullard and Sim Edwards, her wealthy bachelor neighbor, kept up a clandestine love affair for several years, unknown and unsuspected by the young woman's father-in-law, was the substance of the testimony of four witnesses called by the state this afternoon in an endeavor to show that the two defendants in the sensational "love conspiracy" case, trial of which opened before Judge W. D. Blair, of the Blue Ridge circuit, today, plotted to murder D. D. Bullard.

One of the witnesses, Quillian Tetty, neighbor of the Bullards, told the jury how he had come to the back door of the Bullard home one morning in November and had surprised Mrs. Bullard and Edwards in an ardent embrace. The other witnesses told of frequent visits they had seen Edwards make to the Bullard home in the husband's absence and of Edwards' admission of illicit relations with his neighbor's wife.

Boys and Girls Barred.
Forewarned of the nature of the evidence, Judge Newton Morris, counsel for Edwards, fought desperately to have the testimony of Tetty and other character witnesses ruled out, but Judge Blair admitted the evidence on the ground that it would tend to show motive. While these witnesses gave evidence Judge Blair gave orders for young boys and girls to be cleared from the court room.

In the hard legal battle which raged all day between Solicitor General John Wood and Judge Newton Morris, counsel for Edwards, the prosecutor scored one important point early in the contest when he introduced Grover Brown as a witness in an endeavor to smash any possible defense plea of Edwards' counsel based on an alibi for the night of the shooting.

Through other witnesses which the state plans to call Thursday morning, it is planned to stress that Edwards and Mrs. Bullard were more than formal acquaintances and that on more than one occasion there had been talk by Edwards himself that Mrs. Bullard entertained thoughts of killing her husband.

Bullard Tells of Shooting.
Bullard, the young husband, who was shot mysteriously at his home on the night of July 9 was the first witness. With directness and without emotion he told of the terrible awakening when his hands dripped

SURGICAL PATIENT
CHATS AS DOCTORS
WORK WITH KNIFE

Buffalo, N. Y., October 3.—Chatting from time to time with the man on the operating table, Dr. Hans Finsterer, of the University of Vienna, before a clinic of Buffalo surgeons, today removed the patient's stomach, performed a minor operation on the organ and replaced it. The operation required nearly two hours, the patient being fully conscious throughout.

Dr. Finsterer explained that special treatment of the solar plexus, deadening the nerve centers, had made unnecessary the use of anaesthetics. Physicians examining the patient said he had suffered none of the after effects of shock usual in major operations.

Member Who Sold Cotton
Out of Association
Agrees to Pay Three Cents Pound Damages.

Judge C. E. Roop, at the regular October term of superior court at Carrollton, Wednesday, directed a verdict in favor of the Georgia Cotton Growers Cooperative association in its petition for a permanent injunction against Duffy Harten for failure to comply with his contract to deliver his cotton crop as required by the marketing agreement he signed when he became a member of the cooperative association.

The case of the association against C. M. Sprewell, which was on the calendar Wednesday, was, on motion of the association, settled by Sprewell paying 3 cents a pound as liquidated damages to the association on all cotton sold other than to the association and all court costs.

Signs Up Again.
Sprewell also was required to sign a reaffirmation of his membership contract, which reaffirmation stated in part:

"I hereby expressly reaffirm the due execution of my said agreement and marketing contract and hereby state that the same was signed by me of my own free will and with a full and complete understanding of its terms, I agree and bind myself faithfully and honestly to comply with every provision therein contained."

The association was represented by Aaron Sapiro; Bryan & Middlebrooks, of Atlanta, and Boykin & Boykin, of Carrollton.

The action of the court here followed the granting of temporary injunctions against J. T. Williams, W. J. Sims and W. C. Black, who are alleged to have failed to comply with their contracts and sold some of their 1923 crop outside the association.

Hearings October 12.
Temporary restraining orders forbidding them to sell cotton other than to the association until further orders from the court, as signed by Judge Roop, were served on the above defendants Monday of this week. A hearing to make the injunctions permanent, upon petition of the association, has been set for October 12.

Chicago, October 3.—Fred G. Thompson, who admitted being the husband of one woman while he lived as the wife of another man, was found not guilty of the murder of Richard C. Tesmer, shot in a hold-up, by a jury here today, the verdict being returned after approximately two hours deliberation.

The case was given to the jury about 3:45 o'clock after Assistant State's Attorney Justin McCahey, concluded his closing argument and Judge John R. Caverly read 39 instructions to the jury.

Thompson's attorney had stressed what he claimed was the feminine personality in Thompson and Judge Caverly several times spoke of the prisoner as a "lady."

Thompson, taking the stand in his own defense, broke down and sobbed

BARBER IS SLAIN
BY ANGRY COWBOY
FOR SHADE DELAY

New York, October 3.—Refusal to shave an impatient customer cost James Formita, an uptown barber, his life today, and resulted in the arrest of Julius Rodriguez, who said he was a Porto Rican cowboy, on a charge of homicide.

Rodriguez entered Formita's shop and put himself in a chair. When recommended to a neighboring shop he commenced to shout up the place, the police said. One bullet killed Formita, another grazed the cheek of an assistant. Then Rodriguez fled. When the bluecoats pounced upon him after an exciting chase, he still had the pistol in his hand.

Ringed round with a grim circle of prison guards, reinforced by scores of citizen riflemen, the convicts held to their barricade, exchanging an occasional shot with the besiegers.

No concerted attempt to rush the improvised fortress of the convicts was made during the day and tonight, with a machine gun troop of the National Guard from Hopkintonville and the tear gas squad from the Louisville police department, coming to help prison authorities to meet the situation, officials expected to determine what course to pursue after a conference with leaders of the reinforcements.

Hodge Cunningham, of Cadiz, guard, was killed in the first fusillade fired by the convicts. Guards wounded were W. M. Gilbert, of Breckinridge county, believed fatally shot; W. P. Gillihan, Lyon county, shot through hips; and V. B. Mattingly, Leitchfield, shot through the body.

Gilbert and Gillihan were taken to a Paducah hospital, but Mattingly, whose death physicians said was a matter of hours, was kept here.

Mattingly lay for nearly six hours in the spot where he was shot down, exposed to fire from the barricaded convicts. His fellow guards were unable to respond to appeals for water and attention for his wounds.

Congressman Hill recently defied Prohibition Commissioner Haynes to prosecute him for making home brew in the cellar of his Maryland home. The congressman contends that the brewing and wine making is done simply by following instructions contained in a bulletin issued by the department of agriculture. He is an outspoken advocate of modified prohibition permitting manufacture and sale of light wines and beers.

Congressman Hill declares the present law discriminates against the city man in favor of the farmer.

McTigue-
Stribling
Bout Off

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Columbus, Ga., October 3.—The McTigue-Stribling light-heavyweight championship fight, scheduled to be held here tomorrow afternoon, was called off late tonight when it was announced that Mike McTigue, the champion, had sustained a broken hand in training.

Announcement of the calling off of the fight made by Major J. Paul Jones, head of the American Legion committee, promoting the fight following a conference with McTigue and his manager, Joe Jacobs, at a local hospital.

The visit of the champion to the hospital was made shortly after the promoters of the bout had announced that the financial success of the fight had been assured and that the champion's $10,000 guarantee had been turned over to his manager.

Reports seeped out from McTigue's training camp yesterday that the bones in the champion's hands had become "brittle." This was denied by his manager but local fight fans say that they were not favorably impressed by McTigue's showing during his short training period here.

McTigue was taken to the hospital tonight where an X-ray picture of one hand, which had been causing him some trouble, was taken. The picture showed a small bone had become broken in training, hospital physicians said.

Fans from all parts of the south tonight were pouring into the city while the conference was going on. The advance seat sale had passed the $17,000 mark.

After leaving the hospital McTigue told friends at his training camp that "I guess the public will be sorely disappointed but it cannot be helped." He held up his swollen hand to prove his contention.

The challenger expressed disappointment when told that the fight had been called off. "I would have whipped McTigue if he had faced me tomorrow afternoon."

NEW RECORD SET
BY FARM EXHIBITS
AT SOUTHEASTERN

Opening Day Saturday
To Be Greeted by Thousands of Visitors, Railroads Report.

Georgia's greatest agricultural, horticultural and live stock show will begin Saturday at noon at Lakewood park when the Southeastern Fair association opens for an eight-day run. The opening day attendance is expected to surpass that of any previous first day at the fair, according to President Oscar Mills and General Manager R. M. Stripling.

Reports from the railroads indicate thousands of people will come into Atlanta by Saturday, and every other day while the fair is in progress.

Automobile races will begin at 2 o'clock and the fireworks start at 8 o'clock at night. The midway will be open from noon until midnight.

Exhibits in Place.
Nearly all of the agricultural and live stock exhibits are in place. By the time of the opening every building will be filled and everything in fine shape for visitors. Live stock and race horses are arriving daily.

The live stock exhibits and the horse racing will be better this season than ever.

One entire building has been devoted to automobiles this year. This automobile display will equal, if not surpass, the recent automobile show held in Atlanta at the city auditorium. Practically every make of car sold in Atlanta will be on exhibition.

The very latest models will be shown. The exhibitors at the fair will be: Kinsell Motor Car company, Franklin Motor Car company, Empire State Sales company; Olds Motor Works; Woodward Motor company, handling the Chevrolet; John Smith company, handling the Reo; Buick Motor com-

Oklahoma City, Okla., October 3.—Governor J. C. Walton's attack on the legality of yesterday's election on a constitutional amendment to permit an impeachment session of the state legislature was in full swing tonight with more than a third of the returns in the state not yet tabulated.

His first gun in the after election fight was fired today when he sought and obtained in state district court a temporary restraining order preventing the state election board from certifying the returns to the secretary of state.

Hearing on the application to make the order permanent was set October 9. Observers on both sides anticipated a lull in the contest between the governor and the legislature until then.

The order was granted by Judge Tom G. Chambers, Jr., an appointee of Governor Walton.

In his application, the executive alleged the election was illegal because the proposed constitutional amendments submitted were not properly advertised before the election. He declared that thousands of armed special deputies, commissioned by sheriffs throughout the state had intimidated voters and that this, combined with alleged influence exerted by the Ku Klux Klan had kept more than 200,000 persons from the polls.

McBee and Walton at Odds.
Close advisers of the governor declared the election yesterday could not be regarded as a repudiation of him. They said that in the general election of 1922, more than 500,000 votes were cast, while in yesterday's election they estimated the total vote not exceed 300,000 when the official count is made. They explained that they expected 75,000 of the votes cast to be against the amendment.

This they pointed out, would leave only 225,000 cast by the Ku Klux Klan and their adherents, making the total of those who did not vote for the amendment more than 275,000.

"Representative W. D. McBee, and other legislative opponents of the governor leading the move for his impeachment, declared the vote was an 'overwhelming rebuke' of the executive.

Interest in the tangled situation will shift tomorrow to a hearing in state district court of an injunction sought by members of the legislature to bar the governor and his representatives from interfering with their attempt to convene an impeachment session. The injunction suit was brought following action of the military last Wednesday in dispersing.

Charges that Atlanta's traffic laws are the poorest administered of any city in the world and that offenders are being released with small fines for serious violations of the law, were made by Forrest Adair, well known realtor in an address Wednesday before the Atlanta Safety Council.

Mr. Adair called on the people of Atlanta to "stop being mealy-mouthed" and to insist on the punishment of violators of the traffic laws. He pleaded for rigid enforcement of existing laws; for fines and stockade sentences and for a "cloves off" attitude on the part of the Safety Council in their dealings with official charged with administering the traffic laws.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Berlin, October 3.—Dr. Gustav Stresemann and the members of his ministry resigned from office tonight. President Ebert then called upon the retiring chancellor to form a new cabinet.

The Stresemann government retired from office with the relinquishment of passive resistance in the Ruhr and the Rhineland as the only active accomplishment to its credit. While criticism of its usefulness on this score would seem to be not entirely fair, in view of the hopelessly tangled legacy assumed by it as the successor of the Cuno ministry, the Stresemann coalition in its political composition was such as to preclude in the long run any hope of productiveness in the nature of financial and economic reforms, on account of the conflicting currents which hampered its deliberations.

With a theoretical socialist in the ministry of finance and an industrial party man as minister of economics, one chronic point of friction was promptly established. It led to the retirement yesterday of Hans Von Raumer, who held the latter post, as he had apparently wearied of carrying on a running debate with Dr. Hilferding on financial and economic dogmas.

Many Other Laughs.
This was only one of the several minor paradoxes with which the Stresemann ministry was handicapped. The chancellor's well known optimism was praised as useful asset when he assumed office, was unable to overcome the Sisyphus task of getting an economically and politically moribund Germany back on its feet.

M. Poincare, the French premier, is blamed by the German government and the reichstag leaders for the collapse of Chancellor Stresemann's coalition government. If Poincare had given the slightest indication of a reciprocal attitude in response to Germany's abandonment of passive resistance official and political quarters believe that Dr. Stresemann's position would have been measurably strengthened, inasmuch as it would have been shared the nationalist onslaught, which had not only gained momentum through the unconditional Ruhr surrender, but also from the swiftly collapsing internal situation.

Both factors sufficed to knock the prop from under the cabinet, whose advent as a "big coalition government" was acclaimed less than seven weeks ago as presaging internal reconstruction, as well as progress in the foreign situation.

After the socialist members of the reichstag rejected by a vote of 61 to 54, the compromise proposed by

C. F. von HERMANN
Meteorologist, Weather Bureau.

Chancellor Stresemann on the mooted points of the eight-hour law and modification of the authorization law, its four members in the cabinet, Dr. Hildebrand, minister of finance; Schmidt, reconstruction; Solman, interior and food; and Justus, justice, apprised the chancellor of their retirement, whereupon the chancellor convened the remaining members of the cabinet for a decisive session.

While a government without popular representation, as now reflected in the reichstag, would ordinarily be viewed as a return to an ultra-czaristic regime, there is enough sentiment abroad in the land to support such an innovation, in view of the nation's present plight. In the reichstag, the moderate minority wing, the radical party would silently view such an expedient as worth the experiment.

Popular disappointment over the reichstag's failure as a constructive legislative organism is not recent, but dates back several years. The growing social distress has only accelerated it during the past six weeks, the defeat in the Ruhr and Rhine-land battle gave reinforced impetus, and incidentally, quickened nationalist sentiment, which materially contributed to undermining the present cabinet's position, despite its four-party foundation.

Dr. Stresemann is believed in some quarters to be possessed of the necessary qualifications for position of civilian dictator in view of his pronounced economic training. He has initiative and the faculty of quick decision so long as he is unimpeded by political advisers or does not have to answer to party or parliament. He is credited with knowing what the situation demands both in respect to its economics and its finances, and could also, it is said, be relied upon to put a constructive foreign policy into effect.

SIX CITIES AGREE TO RUHR OCCUPATION. (By the Associated Press.)—Six cities in the occupied area have recognized the legality of the Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr by agreeing to furnish their quota of the expense for the sustenance of the occupying armies. Hitherto the municipalities have refused to furnish the money on the ground that the occupation was contrary to the Versailles treaty. The cities are Dusseldorf, Essen, Dortmund, Witten, Hoerde and Bochum.

GERMAN COMMISSION IN RUHR REFUSED.

Paris, October 3.—The French government has rejected a proposal from the German government that the latter send a high commissioner to the Ruhr to negotiate with the French authorities as to the conditions under which work should be resumed.

Baron von Maltzan, German under secretary of foreign affairs, in discussing the subject with M. de Margerie, the French ambassador, was informed that France must decline to have in the Ruhr a representative of the Berlin government who, according to the French conception, would undertake argument in opposition to many measures which the French consider unnecessary.

The penalty for this offense under the French military law is death. The five defendants are Chief of Police Herbert Haas, Police Inspector Hofner, Criminal Police Inspector Arthur Wollenberg, Major Adolf Engel, who is commander of the security police, and Lieutenant Vogt.

Savannah Council Protests Moving Founder's Ashes

Savannah, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—Protesting against the removal of the body of General James Oglethorpe from England, but urging that his ashes be interred in Savannah should the removal take place, a resolution passed by city council at its regular session tonight, asks the United States secretary of state, Charles E. Hughes, to take such measures as necessary to "obliterate the injustice of the removal of the remains of General Oglethorpe to a spot he never visited."

Mayor Paul E. Seabrook will communicate with Secretary Hughes in regard to the matter. First opportunity for official expression of the Savannah attitude toward the proposal to remove the remains of General Oglethorpe from England to America came tonight. The resolution presented to the mayor and council as expressing the sentiment among the people of Savannah, is as follows: "Be it resolved, by the mayor and aldermen of the city of Savannah, in council assembled, that, whereas an effort is being made to remove from England the body of General James Edward Oglethorpe, founder of the city of Savannah and of the colony of Georgia, and to reinter it on the campus of the Oglethorpe university in the city of Atlanta, and

"Whereas, it is the opinion of the mayor and aldermen of the city of Savannah that General Oglethorpe should sleep either in England, his native land, or if his body be removed to America, in the city of Savannah;

"Therefore, he resolved, that the mayor and aldermen of the City of Savannah make this their official protest against the contemplated removal of General Oglethorpe's body to any place in America other than to the city of Savannah, which was the cornerstone of the colony of Georgia; and

"Be it further resolved, that the mayor of Savannah be requested to send a copy of these resolutions to the secretary of state of the United States, with a request that such action be taken as may be advisable in an effort to obviate the injustice of the removal of the remains of General Oglethorpe to a spot he never visited and which can have no particular and unusual claim to the honor of providing his last resting place."

GASOLINE IN ST. PAUL REDUCED TO 14.9 CENTS

St. Paul, Minn., October 3.—Another shot in the gasoline price war that delighted the northwest motorists the past two months, was fired today when the Standard Oil company (Indiana) announced a further reduction of two cents a gallon in Minneapolis and St. Paul, effective at once.

The announcement of the reduction, which places low test gasoline at 14.9 cents and high test at 17.9 declared it was to "meet certain competition here." Independent dealers as a rule, said they would meet the reduction.

Today's reduction raises to 8.6 cents the total cost gasoline dealers in the twin cities have made since Governor W. H. McMaster of South Dakota started the price war, by putting the state in the gasoline selling business after declaring regular dealers were setting excessive profits.

GERMAN PREMIER HAS EITHER QUIT OR MUST REVAMP

"His brother brought it to me." "Who saw you put it in the dairy loft?"

Edwards New Place. "Sim Edwards saw me put it there and he was the only person who knew where that gun was," said Bullard.

Bullard further explained that the gun was still warm from the recent discharge when he picked it up, and that it smelt of powder. He then told of the shell that had later been found in the living room. He said he recognized the shell by certain weather marks on it. He had picked it up in the fields one day and brought it home and put it on the mantle shelf. His wife was the only person who knew where that shell was, he said.

"Two weeks before the shooting I happened to look on the mantle shelf and saw the shell was gone," Bullard asserted. "I never saw it again until some one brought it to me while I lay in the Marietta hospital and I then identified it as one of the shells that I had formerly picked up out in the fields."

Pillows In Evidence. Despondent at the blood-stained pillows would inflame the minds of the jurors against the defendants, Judge W. D. Blair overruled the objections and the pillows were displayed in court.

The pillow showed not only blood stains but also a small hole, which was punctured in numerous places with shot.

Wife Invited Edwards.

On further examination by Newton Morris, counsel for Edwards, Bullard admitted that he and Edwards had been good friends for several years and that they often swapped work on the construction of houses.

"Did the defendant not come over to your house on the Saturday before the shooting at your own invitation?" asked Judge Morris.

"No, sir, I invited him and my wife invited him."

"Did Edwards bring the gun with him?" asked Judge Morris.

"No, his brother did."

"I did not ask him to lend it to me but he volunteered to bring it because I had some hawks on my farm. Three weeks before the shooting Sim Edwards came in and asked for the gun as he was going after some deer. I got it out and he asked me to put it in the loft over the milk house so that he could get it when he wanted it. He was the only person there when I put the gun there," said Bullard.

"Did you not often go with Edwards to the still about the court room, asked Edwards' counsel of Bullard."

"No, not often. Once he got me some beer and it made me sick," he said.

This testimony was ruled out by Judge Blair as well as the question by Judge Morris whether Bullard had been in the liquor business with a man named Florence and that upon some disagreement with this man, Florence had threatened Bullard with violence.

"On the night of the shooting did you fasten the door?" asked Judge Newton Morris.

"I fastened the door on the inside. When I woke it was open. The window also was open but not wide enough to allow the passage of a man," Bullard answered.

"Are you a sound sleeper?" came the next question.

"No, not very. But that night they had under the influence of young Bullard, was the first witness called by the state in an endeavor to prove a motive for an attempt to kill on the part of Edwards and Mrs. Bullard."

The nature of the evidence about to be submitted made Judge Blair give the sheriff an order to clear all young boys and girls from the court room.

Judge Newton Morris asked for withdrawal of the jury while presenting argument against the introduction of Tetty's testimony. Solicitor General Wood admitted that the testimony would involve relations between Edwards and Mrs. Bullard, but Judge Blair finally admitted the testimony on the ground that it would tend to show motive.

Tetty said that he went to the Bullard home on November 6, 1922, and that he saw the back door open. Edwards and Mrs. Bullard were inside the door with their arms around each other.

"When they heard me, Mrs. Bullard gave a yell and ran away. Edwards ran out the back door naked. Later in the evening he came to me and asked me not to mention anything about what I had seen earlier in the day," Tetty said.

Detective Story Material. As witnesses for the prosecution told their stories, every ingredient that goes to make up the modern detective story, piece by piece and bit by bit, was jumping into its place to make a complete novel.

Here, the state seeks to prove, was the husband, a hard-working, young man, who has a reputation of saving money. While away from home witnesses told of surprising his wife with a week-end young man's wardrobe, a color, and, the state alleges, known throughout the district as a gay Lothario, who loved to go to dances and dress according to the latest dictates of fashion.

The husband is wounded. The door has been fastened from the inside, says the wounded man. "The state tries to prove that the young wife plotted with her lover to come in first at the door of night and take the life of the husband, who stands in the way."

The gun is found. It is identified by the evidence shows, however, that Sim repeatedly wanted to make sure and impress it upon Bullard's mind that the gun was at his own place, not at Edwards' home. And then the casual identification of the shell. Somebody brings it to the husband as he lay hovering between life and death at the hospital.

Recognizes Shell. He recognizes it as the shell he picked up in the woods some weeks ago. He can tell it by some weather marks. And then he remembers also that his wife is the only person who knows where that shell was placed in the house. A little family corner, for all things, the mantle shelf in this case.

Slowly a new thought comes into the wounded man's mind. It is a terrible thought, but he cannot evade it. His wife had been unfaithful and has planned to kill him. And then, as he lies between fits of fever, little things of the past come back to his memory. Little things to which he paid scant attention when they happened, but which now take on a sinister, terrible significance.

Judge Newton Morris sought to up- Tetty's testimony on the ground that his version of the incident at the Bullard home, when he had surprised the young people in an ardent embrace, had differed a great deal from time to time since the shooting.

Tetty Scandal-Mongering. Edwards' counsel produced minutes from a Baptist conference in 1911, which showed that Tetty had been discontinued in the membership of "Whose gun was it?" asked Solicitor General Wood.

"Sim Edwards was the answer."

"How did it come in your possession?"

"I told Edwards and others that I would report his conduct to the Ku Klux Klan," Tetty said in answer to Judge Newton's question.

Grover Brown told of having met Edwards on July 9 in Atlanta and of having driven him back to the neighborhood of the Bullard home where Edwards left the car and went in search of liquor. According to the witness, he was away a long time. How long he could not definitely say, for he had fallen asleep during the vigil. When Edwards returned he seemed excited and nervous. He got away. They are after me," the witness quoted Edwards as having exclaimed. "The car was in the hurry the headlights blew out. They drove to Dallas and roused several acquaintances for help to get the car repaired. When leaving the car at Dallas, Grover Brown said he noticed for the first time that Edwards' overalls were torn.

"When he left the car he went in the direction of the Bullard home. After we returned to Atlanta he asked me to say if anybody asked me where I had been that night that I had spent the night with Edwards at his aunt's," Brown said in answer to Mr. Wood's question.

Asked Aid for Alibi. "I saw him the next day on Capitol avenue and he told me then that Bullard had been shot. They are going to try and lay it on me," he said and he asked me to swear that we had been to Canton during the previous night. He told me that a week-end young man about my trip with Edwards to the neighborhood of the Bullard home and would require time to think the matter over."

Sim Edwards, behind his lawyers, watched the man who accused him directly of having ruined his home and of having planned to take his life. He stirred in his chair, looked anxiously at his lawyer, and returned the stare to the man on the witness stand.

Mrs. Bullard, who is to appear as a witness in the trial of Edwards, was in court just long enough to be sworn in. After that she remained the rest of the day in one of the adjoining rooms.

Judge Newton Morris, defense counsel for Edwards, objected strenuously to the testimony of Bullard on the ground that being the husband of Mrs. Bullard he was not qualified to give evidence.

"If the theory of the state is based on an alleged plot between Edwards and Mrs. Bullard then this witness becomes disqualified because he is the husband of one of the parties accused in the state's theory," he said.

Awakened By Shot. Bullard told the story of the shooting on the night of July 9. He said that his wife had retired before him, something which he had seldom done during the five years that they had been married. Bullard went to sleep at once. He was awakened by a shot and felt a terrible pain in his head. The pillow on which he lay had been set on fire and the first thing he did upon awakening was to put out the flames.

"My wife was partly on the bed and partly out of it," he said. "I called to her in the darkness that I had been shot and she made a light."

"Then I saw a gun lying on the floor. I recognized the gun as the double-barreled shot-gun that had been hidden over the loft of the milk-house."

A. F. L. COMMITTEES
SIFT RESOLUTIONS

Portland, Ore., October 3.—Two issues loomed big in the opinion of labor leaders tonight as committees continued to work on a mass of resolutions introduced at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor here.

From three states and from one of the large international unions there have come demands that the American Federation of Labor enter actively into politics, and from three states there have been received suggestions that unions amalgamate into single organizations, each to cover one industry.

Adoption of either of these would involve a departure from the policies of the federation in recent years. Labor leaders predicted the conservative element at the convention would be strong enough to overcome both movements.

Hoosier efforts today of Max J. Sillensky, of Cleveland, Ohio, to bring a resolution on recognition of soviet Russia before the convention with a request that it be transferred to the committee on international relations from the resolutions committee to which it had been assigned. His appeal to the committee from an adverse ruling of President Samuel Gompers was lost by an overwhelming vote.

Gompers Against Fascist.
Representatives of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor, the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor and the Chicago Federation of Labor have asked that labor launch into the political arena as a party. Delegates from the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers have joined in this stand.

Amalgamation of unions is sought in resolutions proposed by representatives of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, the trades and labor council of Butte, Mont., and the Portland, Ore., central labor council.
Among the 95 resolutions which are before the convention, are protests against injunctions, demand for election of all federal judges by popular vote and for laws for abolition of child labor.
Vigorous denunciation of the fascist movement and the present government of Italy is contained in a resolution of which President Gompers is one of the sponsors.

WALTON REFUSES TO BE DOWNCAST

at the governor's order, a session called by a majority of the members without his sanction.
The action was instituted before it was determined that the legislative amendment would be voted on in yesterday's election.

Meanwhile a new attack was launched today against the official vote of Governor Walton by Campbell Russell, a bitter political enemy of the governor, who circulated the initiative petition for the legislative referendum.

This time it was a petition for a grand jury in district court here to investigate charges that Governor Walton has misused public money, and to inquire into the appointment of thousands of state "secretary" agents by the executive. More than the required number of signatures were obtained and the petition was filed in what was said to have been the shortest time on record.

The proposal to reimburse depositors in defunct state banks undoubtedly is beaten.

WALTON STILL DEFIANT

Charging that the Ku Klux Klan controlled yesterday's election, Governor Walton issued a statement tonight pledging to "the American people" that the issue "whether the invisible empire" shall supplant constitutional government in Oklahoma will be decided in the special election on December 6. This was called by the governor as a substitute for yesterday's election which was proclaimed illegal by executive decree. Only the legislative proposal will be submitted.

"The Klan guns of the nation are now trained on me," Governor Walton declared in his statement. "I am daily in receipt of threats of assassination, but I had rather die by the hand of an assassin than die the death of a coward."

"The fight is to a finish. There will be no compromise. In 60 days will be fought the most historic political battle since the civil war."

The governor renewed his appeal for funds with which to continue his campaign, declaring the "kian money" now is flowing into the state.

His statement follows:
"Approximately 300,000 votes of the state refused to participate in the election on October 2, which was declared illegal by proclamation of the governor."

"Approximately 200,000 votes will be counted for the measure known as 'No. 70,' (the legislative referendum) the Ku Klux Klan controlled the election machinery in the large cities and how many fraudulent votes were counted can not yet be determined."

"I ordered the militia home before the election and no soldiers appeared at the polls."

Armed Sheriff at Polls.
"The Klan sheriffs then swore in hundreds of deputies and they stood around the polls armed."

"I ask all American citizens to remain calm and pledge themselves that at the election called for December 6 the question of who shall rule in Oklahoma—the visible republic or the invisible empire—will be decided and decided finally and decisively."

"We now know who the Klan are—their strength and number."

"I ask all citizens to give no heed to the ravings of the Daily Oklahoman, the Muskogee Phoenix or the Tulsa Tribune and other Klan papers."

"At the Klan election, the soldiers' bonus bill was defeated by Klan votes, the constitutional amendment providing that women could hold any office in this state was defeated and the bill providing for rural aid to educate the children of tenant farmers was killed by the Klan vote."

"In the next sixty days will be fought the most historic political battle in American history since the civil war, and the question to be decided on December 6 shall this state, and possibly this nation, be controlled by the Ku Klux Klan."

Is Klan Target.
"The Klan guns of the nation are now trained on me and I am daily in receipt of threats of assassination, but I had rather die by the hand of an assassin than die the death of a coward."

"I now say that the fight is to a finish, no compromise."

"The money of the Klan is flowing into this state and I ask all American citizens to stand by me morally and give financial assistance."

Declaring there is no Klan issue in Oklahoma "except the hallucinations of a distorted brain," Representative McIlwain later issued the following statement:

"The legislative committee has repeatedly denied that there is a Klan issue in Oklahoma. We are as ready to protect the interests of one sect, creed, denomination or race as another. We are true Americans, open and above board, recognizing the spirit and letter of the constitution of the United States and constitutional government."

"We realize that Governor Walton uses his smoke screen of 'kian issue' to fool the people outside of Oklahoma. He has failed to fool our own people, as is evidenced by the overwhelming rebuke at the ballot box Tuesday. His home precinct in Oklahoma City repudiated him by a vote of 213 to 16. The precinct which lived prior to becoming governor turned him down, 177 to 17. There is not and has never been a 'kian issue' in Oklahoma except in the hallucinations of a distorted brain."

"Governor Walton's reckless orgy of spending the state's money, his suspension of the writ of habeas corpus, his pardon and parole disgrace; his reckless misuse of the military over a flimsy pretext, sources of other unlawful acts, fresh in the minds of the people, must be covered up in some way. Hence, the cry, 'the Klan; the Klan!'"

"COLTS" DUE TO FIGHT A "BUSTER"
Oklahoma City, Okla., October 3.—One hundred members of Ragen's Athletic club of Chicago, described as "backyard Irish lads, handy with dukes, knives or guns," who left for Oklahoma recently with the announced intention of aiding Governor J. C. Walton in his fight against the Ku Klux Klan, will be put to work picking cotton if they reach Oklahoma City, Mayor O. A. Cargill advised the "Yankee Tribune" in a telegram tonight.

"The fighting is over," Mayor Cargill said, "but the colts will be rounded up for an engagement with the boll weevil."

The telegram follows:
"Press reports have it that Ragen's colts are on their way to Oklahoma on the theory that this fight is open to the public. The fighting is over but the cotton picking is under way in full swing, and the colts will be rounded up for an engagement with the boll weevil."

They should bear in mind that Oklahoma is the original bronco busting state and our slogan has been changed from 'they shall not pass' to 'ride 'em cowboy!'"

MILITARY RECALLED FROM TULSA POLICE.
Tulsa, Okla., October 3.—Orders from the adjutant general's office ordering removal of Cole L. Head and Captain Murray Sells, and "all their aids and assistants" from the offices of the county sheriff and city police commissioner, respectively, were served this afternoon from Oklahoma City.

The order was expected to block hearing Friday in the supreme court on quo warranto proceedings instituted last week in behalf of the sheriff and police commissioner.

The military supervisors were placed in the two offices under Gov. J. C. Walton's law proclamation September 14.

Washington, October 3.—Railroad officials, bankers, lawyers and men who "farm the farmers" have all offered remedies for the agricultural situation to President Coolidge. But on Wednesday the president heard from a real dirt farmer who was in overalls holding a pitchfork two weeks ago.

Magnus Johnson, Minnesota's new farmer-labor senator, conferred with the president at noon and went to lunch with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Johnson observed the proprieties and declined to divulge what President Coolidge said to him. He proposed government price stabilization for two or three years to the president.

"I told him he already had too many suggestions," Johnson said. "But I thought I ought to tell him what I had gathered from my own experience and from talking to bankers and professional men."

Johnson was cordially received by the president and was invited to call at the white house on his return from the west.

"He was very sympathetic and cordial to me," Johnson thought that if the domestic price of wheat could be stabilized at around $1.75, or some such figure which would cover the cost of production, it would be possible to sell the surplus to Europe at a lower figure if the freight reduction on export grain is put into effect.

Johnson was somewhat disturbed at extravagant stories quoting him as saying he was coming to Washington "to show them birds how to act."

He went to one local newspaper office to protest against an unfair account and received cordial editorial mention in the following edition.

"I'm a new man here and I have got to learn," he said. "I am not coming down here to tell anybody how to act. I'm no fool."

REPRESENTATIVE SHOT IN MEXICAN CONGRESS.
Mexico City, October 3.—The lobby of the lower house of congress saw the scenes of a lively battle yesterday afternoon when two deputies fought a personal dispute causing representatives and spectators to be in the struggle had political significance.

When Deputy Menes Cordova fired three shots at his colleague, Leon Leon, those in the galleries thought that a fight was on between the supporters of General Plutarco Calles and Adolfo de la Huerta. There were shouts of "viva Calles" and "viva de la Huerta," while on the floor other representatives used their fists on each other. Order was finally restored without casualties other than a bullet wound in the leg by Rueda Leon.

BAYED CONVICTS STILL HOLD FORT.

A prisoner took water to the wounded man. Mattingly refused to let the convict carry him to safety, fearing the barricaded man would shoot him to death in his rescuer's arms. He was able eventually to drag him self to a point where rescuers could reach him without being exposed to fire.

The convicts, Monte Walters, of Louisville; Lawrence Griffith, Mayfield, and Harry Ferland, Covington or Newport, initiated their desperate bid for freedom in the shirt factory of the prison early today, according to Guard Gillham. Between forty and 100 convicts were in the room, Gillham said, when the three men seized and bound Lee Scholes, lone guard there, and with automatic pistols in their hands, made a dash for the main entrance to the prison grounds, firing at every guard they met.

Shots Called Aid.
The short attracted guards from all parts of the prison to the scene and under a heavy fire the convicts were forced to take refuge in the dining room, a two-story brick building in the center of the prison grounds.

From vantage points in upstairs windows of the dining room, the convicts fired at the guards below.

"I told him he already had too many suggestions," Johnson said. "But I thought I ought to tell him what I had gathered from my own experience and from talking to bankers and professional men."

Johnson was cordially received by the president and was invited to call at the white house on his return from the west.

"He was very sympathetic and cordial to me," Johnson thought that if the domestic price of wheat could be stabilized at around $1.75, or some such figure which would cover the cost of production, it would be possible to sell the surplus to Europe at a lower figure if the freight reduction on export grain is put into effect.

Johnson was somewhat disturbed at extravagant stories quoting him as saying he was coming to Washington "to show them birds how to act."

He went to one local newspaper office to protest against an unfair account and received cordial editorial mention in the following edition.

"I'm a new man here and I have got to learn," he said. "I am not coming down here to tell anybody how to act. I'm no fool."

Mexico City, October 3.—The lobby of the lower house of congress saw the scenes of a lively battle yesterday afternoon when two deputies fought a personal dispute causing representatives and spectators to be in the struggle had political significance.

When Deputy Menes Cordova fired three shots at his colleague, Leon Leon, those in the galleries thought that a fight was on between the supporters of General Plutarco Calles and Adolfo de la Huerta. There were shouts of "viva Calles" and "viva de la Huerta," while on the floor other representatives used their fists on each other. Order was finally restored without casualties other than a bullet wound in the leg by Rueda Leon.

Washington, October 3.—Railroad officials, bankers, lawyers and men who "farm the farmers" have all offered remedies for the agricultural situation to President Coolidge. But on Wednesday the president heard from a real dirt farmer who was in overalls holding a pitchfork two weeks ago.

Magnus Johnson, Minnesota's new farmer-labor senator, conferred with the president at noon and went to lunch with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Johnson observed the proprieties and declined to divulge what President Coolidge said to him. He proposed government price stabilization for two or three years to the president.

"I told him he already had too many suggestions," Johnson said. "But I thought I ought to tell him what I had gathered from my own experience and from talking to bankers and professional men."

ACCIDENT INJURIES MAY PROVE FATAL

Little hope was entertained by surgeons at the Atlanta hospital Wednesday night for the recovery of Miss Trassie Rickerson, of 50 Tunhill street, whose skull was crushed earlier in the day in a street car accident. The young woman had not regained consciousness late Wednesday night.

Miss Rickerson was a passenger on an inbound Cooper street car, according to reports from the officials of the Georgia Railway & Power Co. As her car turned into Whitehall street, she is said to have leaned out the window, an outboard Whitehall street car striking her head and crushing her skull.

The car on which Miss Rickerson was riding was in charge of Conductor L. P. Cooper. He was unable to say just where she got on the car.

Others Injured.

Three others were injured in accident.

WALnut 3882

A letter from one of my patients:
I had been suffering for seven years with what doctors called Pycorrhea. Among them were three specialists.

A young friend of mine in Atlanta asked me to try you, as he had been benefited by you, and being treated by seven doctors and given up.

I will say your treatment for pycorrhea has given me more relief than I have had in many years. I realize, of course, it will take time to cure me absolutely, for it is a disease of long standing. Your treatment for pycorrhea has helped me more than all the doctors put together, and I thank you.

Sincerely,
MRS. JESSIE GREEN,

"Why Worry?"

dents Wednesday—two seriously. They are S. W. Hardeman, 17-year-old married man who lives on the Campbellton road, and R. E. Stanley, 8 Lakewood terrace. Joe Hurston, of 35 Haygood avenue, escaped with minor injuries.

Hardeman, who is employed in the pressroom of an afternoon newspaper, got his hand caught in the press, which mangled it up to his wrist, necessitating amputation. He also suffered other injuries, surgeons at Grady hospital stated.

Stanley was hurt at the substation of the Georgia Railway & Power Co. at Boulevard and Tenth street, where he is employed. His left foot is reported to have been broken. Details surrounding the accident in which he was hurt had not been learned late Wednesday night. He was rushed to the Atlanta hospital in Greenberg & Bond's ambulance.

Hurston sustained severe bruises and cuts when hurled from the automobile of R. A. Landrum, of 35 Haygood street, as it collided with a machine driven by a negro, Clyde Glover, Wednesday afternoon. This accident happened at Fairlie and Poplar streets. Charges of reckless driving were preferred against both drivers by Patrolman W. E. Anderson.

Fred Benson Killed

News to the effect that Fred Benson, former Atlanta, now living in Jacksonville, Fla., had died from injuries received in an automobile accident last Sunday, was received by Atlanta relatives Wednesday.

Mr. Benson is a brother of Mrs. Madeline T. Benson, of 1000 Peachtree street. Besides his two brothers, his widow and daughter, Miss Lonnie, survive him.

Details concerning the accident were not received in the telegraphic information his brothers received. Mr. Benson was engaged in the realty business in the Florida city.

Another die Wednesday from injuries received in an automobile accident was Mrs. Minnie Brown, of 1000 Peachtree street, who was hurt near Gainesville Sunday when the automobile in which she was riding with her daughters, Mrs. Harry Orth and Miss Madeline Brown, struck a tree and Mrs. Tura Cummings, plunged into the Ocoee river.

Mrs. Brown was rushed to a hospital in Gainesville where surgeons found that she was suffering from a fractured skull, besides internal injuries. Information received here is to the effect that she never regained consciousness after reaching the hospital.

ORGANIZE CHAMBER FOR FAYETTEVILLE

Fayetteville, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—A Fayetteville chamber of commerce was organized here last night. The meeting was held at the court house. Prominent men and women from all sections of the county were present, and expressed their commendation of the project.

C. V. Shirley, county agent, after outlining the object of the meeting, appointed A. O. Blacklock as chairman. B. S. Barker, secretary of the Atlanta chamber of commerce and N. H. Harper, of the soil improvement committee, were the speakers.

C. V. Shirley was elected temporary secretary and took the following names for membership:

FAIR SKIES FORECAST

Cool Weather to Continue; No Cold Is Seen.

Continued fair weather, with slightly lower temperatures for the next few days, is the official prediction of C. F. Hermann, official prognosticator for this vicinity.

For that matter, there is no prospect of any really severe cold weather in sight, and, unless there is a startling change in atmospheric conditions, there isn't the slightest ground for worry about the old heating system, for awhile yet.

"The area of high atmospheric pressure is slowly spreading over the entire country, accompanied by generally fair and moderately colder weather in most sections, but there is no really cold weather anywhere," said the forecaster.

ONE RIGHT RESERVED

Mere Man Is Permitted to Tuck in His Shirt.

Birmingham, Ala., October 3.—When a man's shirt tail is out, there's only one thing to do.

G. S. Jennott, standing in a rather exposed position of the downtown section, discovered himself in that position and acted forthwith.

Just at that time a party of women drove up in an automobile, and Patrolman Helton arrested Jennott, charging disorderly conduct.

"Case dismissed," said Police Judge C. E. Wilder Wednesday. "A fellow has a right to tuck his shirt tail into his trousers."

PROF. W. C. JONES DIES

Was President of Board for Wilson Foundation.

Pekin, October 2.—Professor William Carey Jones, of Berkeley, Cal., widely known as an authority on law, died of apoplexy here today.

William Carey Jones was emeritus professor of law at the University of California. He was born in Washington, D. C., October 13, 1854. He was elected president of the board of the Woodrow Wilson foundation in 1921.

L. & N. ENGINEER SCALDED TO DEATH

Knoxville, Tenn., October 3.—George W. O'Mary, 65, engineer in the employ of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, was fatally scalded in a derailment and wreckage of his engine, one of a double-header attached to a southbound freight train, at Habersham, Tenn., 64 miles north of this city. The injured man died while being carried from the L. & N. depot here to a local hospital after having been brought to this city on a special train at 1:15 o'clock this morning.

The wreck was occasioned when the pilot engine of the double-header struck a large boulder lying on the tracks at Habersham. The engine turned over and scalding steam poured over the engine driver before assistance could be rendered him.

U. S. Land, Sea, Air Forces To Play Giant War Game

Plans Based on Spring Maneuvers of the Battle Fleet To Center in Attempt on Panama Canal.

Washington, October 3.—Army, navy and marine corps will act together in January, 1924, for the first time in working out a war game if the program tentatively approved by the navy department for the spring maneuvers of the battle fleet is executed.

Operating from the Island of Culebra, in the Caribbean, the most complete naval force organized under the American flag since the world war, will defend the eastern approaches of the Panama Canal. Prior to the final phase of the canal, however, the combined fleets will have carried out over a period of ten to twelve weeks, the various stages of a "problem" drawn up by the joint army and navy board after survey of the position of the United States in relation to its potential enemies.

A marine expeditionary force, fully equipped, will be rushed to Culebra on transports to take part in the land maneuvers, and the army will be given an opportunity to try out its improved defenses of Panama. Aviation arms of both services are to be represented in unprecedented force, the 28-1 being included in the air contingent scheduled to participate.

Long Cruise First.

As in the case of the last fleet games, conditions will be simulated as far as possible to those that would exist in time of war. Under this theory, the attacking forces will make a preliminary cruise of several thousand miles in order that their condition will be approximately that of the enemy, and the defenders will be gathered under emergency orders from their normal stations.

Commanded by Admiral Samuel S. Robinson, the first line battleships, organized as the battle fleet, will leave Los Angeles January 4, accompanied by the fleet base force. En route to Balboa, this force will spend the twelve-day voyage in battle practice. Attached aircraft forces are to play a prominent part in these games to demonstrate the value in modern naval operations of "command of the air."

The scouting fleet is scheduled to leave Hampton Roads January 14, under Vice Admiral N. A. McCully. Naval forces gathered from the east coast stations are to reach Colon January 14, where they will mobilize for the first joint battle game.

ARMADA WILL ATTACK PANAMA CANAL GATES.

Los Angeles, October 3.—Details of a plan of operation for 1924 comprising what was described as "the greatest scope of activity by the American navy since the world war" were revealed aboard the flagship Seattle by Admiral Robert F. Coe, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet now at Los Angeles harbor.

The plan centers around a Caribbean cruise on which more than 15 warships of the combined fleets based on Vaquez Sound, Porto Rico, will be engaged for more than three months.

HOW TO GET RID OF CATARRH

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive Method that Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable, or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh. You can now get rid of it by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is composed of medicinal herbs, flowers and berries, which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette. The smoke-vapor is inhaled into all the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs and carries medicine where sprays, douches and salves cannot possibly reach. Its effect is soothing and healing and is entirely harmless. It contains no cubes or tobacco, and may be used by women and children, as well as men.

If you suffer from catarrh, asthma, catarrhal deafness or are subject to frequent colds, get from any drug store a convenient pocket size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes and prove for yourself their pleasant, beneficial effect.—(adv.)

Future Hens to Lay Two Eggs Each Day. Poultry Men Say

Morgantown, W. Va., October 3.—Experiments conducted at the West Virginia University Agricultural station here by poultry experts, has led them to believe that it may be possible to breed chickens which will lay either two eggs a day or one egg every day of the year, H. G. Knight, the director, announced today.

Hen number 345 has two generative organs, according to the director. Her record shows, he said, that for three or four days she lays eggs long and narrow, and then for a few days the eggs are a natural shape. If hens can be bred with two generative organs, according to the experts, it would be possible to have such a chicken lay two eggs a day.

Goldsmith-Grant company, handling the Hudson and Essex; Stutz Sales company, Paige-Detroit Motor company, Martin-Nash Motor company, handling the Nash; Hansons Motor company, Ford Motor company, Willys-Overland company, the Cadillac company, the Yellow Taxi company.

In the automobile building will also be a number of accessory and tire exhibits. The decorations on the interior of the automobile hall are gorgeous in every detail. Yellow and white are the predominating colors and this scheme will be followed by the exhibitors in the arrangement of their booths.

Parking Arrangements.

General Manager Strippl calls special attention to the arrangements made for parking automobiles both inside and outside the grounds this year, and assures those who visit the fair in their cars that there will be ample space to care for them. Provision against unnecessary delay in going into the park or leaving it has been made.

"All of the driveways in the park are now paved with concrete," said Mr. Strippl. "This will be a great improvement over last year in that the pavements will keep down dust and prevent any annoyance from mud, in event of rain, which we are hoping won't trouble us."

Saturday night visitors to the fair will be treated to a gorgeous display of fireworks. The Venetian effect which was successfully presented during the Elks' convention will be reproduced. Sunday night there will be no fireworks, but Monday night the big spectacle showing the Battle of Atlanta and the Burning of Atlanta will be the big features.

Sunday Music Free.

The band concerts Sunday afternoon and Sunday night by the Royal Scotch Highland band, led by Roy D. Smith, will be the Sunday entertainment. Admission will be free, both Sunday afternoon and Sunday night. Director Smith has arranged two wonderful programs for the Sunday concerts and music lovers will enjoy a real treat.

This noted band will play during the entire fair. The programs will be changed each day. Among the famous artists with the band are Manuel Yngling, trombone soloist; Sergeant Turner Nearing, cornet soloist; Frank Lochner, clarinetist; Jimmie Howard, xylophone soloist; Jimmie McPherson, piper of the family; Watch regiment, and Bobby Brodie, Scotch tenor.

Candler Horses Entered.

The horse racing program, which is now being prepared, will be the classic seen in Atlanta. Running, trotting and pacing events are on the schedule for every afternoon beginning promptly at 2 o'clock. Announcement of the entries and the exact schedule will be made within the next day or two. Some of the swiftest American and Canadian horses are on the program, however. There also are many Georgia entries. Walter Candler, of Atlanta, will have several of his finest steeds in a number of the events.

Johnny Jones Carnival company promises the cleanest and best show ever brought south. These attractions will be augmented by the shows already at Lakewood.

The fair this year will have more attractions, more exhibits and more visitors than any previous fair, and from present indications, it will be a success in every way.

"School Day" at Fair.

Public schools of Atlanta will observe a holiday next Friday in order that students may attend the Southeastern Fair, which will open its gates Saturday, according to announcement by Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, Wednesday.

Officials of the fair association have set aside Monday as "school day" at the fair, reducing the price of admission to school children to only 15 cents. The reduced rates will apply to all students attending schools or colleges in or around Atlanta.

made for parking automobiles both inside and outside the grounds this year, and assures those who visit the fair in their cars that there will be ample space to care for them. Provision against unnecessary delay in going into the park or leaving it has been made.

"All of the driveways in the park are now paved with concrete," said Mr. Strippl. "This will be a great improvement over last year in that the pavements will keep down dust and prevent any annoyance from mud, in event of rain, which we are hoping won't trouble us."

Saturday night visitors to the fair will be treated to a gorgeous display of fireworks. The Venetian effect which was successfully presented during the Elks' convention will be reproduced. Sunday night there will be no fireworks, but Monday night the big spectacle showing the Battle of Atlanta and the Burning of Atlanta will be the big features.

Sunday Music Free.

The band concerts Sunday afternoon and Sunday night by the Royal Scotch Highland band, led by Roy D. Smith, will be the Sunday entertainment. Admission will be free, both Sunday afternoon and Sunday night. Director Smith has arranged two wonderful programs for the Sunday concerts and music lovers will enjoy a real treat.

This noted band will play during the entire fair. The programs will be changed each day. Among the famous artists with the band are Manuel Yngling, trombone soloist; Sergeant Turner Nearing, cornet soloist; Frank Lochner, clarinetist; Jimmie Howard, xylophone soloist; Jimmie McPherson, piper of the family; Watch regiment, and Bobby Brodie, Scotch tenor.

Candler Horses Entered.

The horse racing program, which is now being prepared, will be the classic seen in Atlanta. Running, trotting and pacing events are on the schedule for every afternoon beginning promptly at 2 o'clock. Announcement of the entries and the exact schedule will be made within the next day or two. Some of the swiftest American and Canadian horses are on the program, however. There also are many Georgia entries. Walter Candler, of Atlanta, will have several of his finest steeds in a number of the events.

Johnny Jones Carnival company promises the cleanest and best show ever brought south. These attractions will be augmented by the shows already at Lakewood.

The fair this year will have more attractions, more exhibits and more visitors than any previous fair, and from present indications, it will be a success in every way.

ADMITS MURDER TO GET INSURANCE

Eureka, Cal., October 3.—Alex Kels, wealthy butcher of Lodi, Cal., confessed early this morning to authorities that he killed a stranger on his ranch near Lodi September 12, set fire to a haystack near his automobile to burn the body and disappeared from sight in order to enable his wife to collect his insurance money, amounting to $100,000.

Announcement of the confession was made by Assistant District Attorney M. G. Woodward of San Joaquin county at 2:45 o'clock, after he and Sheriff W. H. Riecke, who arrived here at 8 o'clock had grilled Kels for nearly four hours.

The attempted hoax was carried out, Kels told the officers, because he was in financial distress. Who the man was that he killed he declared he did not know. He picked the stranger up at a Lodi free employment agency he said, and took him to his ranch. There he shot him twice, killing him. Later driving to the ranch, where the body was found, Placino, the hay around the machine he set fire to it and fled from the scene, walking to Sacramento, where he began the trip over the southwest which later led him to Eureka, where he was arrested Monday night.

COLON POISONING DESTROYS HEALTH

Hastens Old Age and Premature Degeneration of All Vital Organs.

You are a wise man or woman if you understand your colon and keep it in perfect working order. Health, happiness, vigor and long life are the gifts which an active colon gives you—and a lazy colon takes away.

Your colon is the last five feet of your digestive canal. It is your sewerage system; your garbage can, so to speak. Keep it clean and you are well and happy; let it stagnate and it will distill the poisons of decay, fermentation (gas) and putrefaction into your blood, poisoning your brain and nerves so that you are restless, irritable and blue; poisoning your heart so that you are weak, listless and lazy; poisoning your lungs so that your breath is heavy or foul; poisoning your stomach and digestive organs so that you are bloated, belching and uncomfortable with gas pains; poisoning your blood so that your skin looks yellow, sallow and unhealthy; poisoning every part and organ of your body, through your blood, making you look and feel old and ugly long before your time; making your joints and your back stiff and rheumatic, your eyes dull and your brain sluggish.

By the perfect law of Nature, your colon should empty itself three times a day—within an hour after eating. Does your colon do this well? If not, it has lost its tone. What do we mean by tone? Your colon is a hollow muscle. Its walls are made up of long, muscle fibers or muscle cells which, by their contraction, empty the colon just as you would squeeze a rubber hose pipe. These muscle fibers should contract three times a day—within an hour after each meal. If they do not contract, they have lost their tone—their power to contract.

But, there is a practically perfect remedy for lazy, flabby colons. This remedy quickly restores the tone, is absolutely harmless and decidedly pleasant to take. Clip this article and take it to your druggist. Tell him to give you a bottle of Colotone—the colon tonic. It will cost you one dollar if you are pleased with it, for every druggist has been instructed to refund the price and ask no questions if his customer is not thoroughly satisfied.

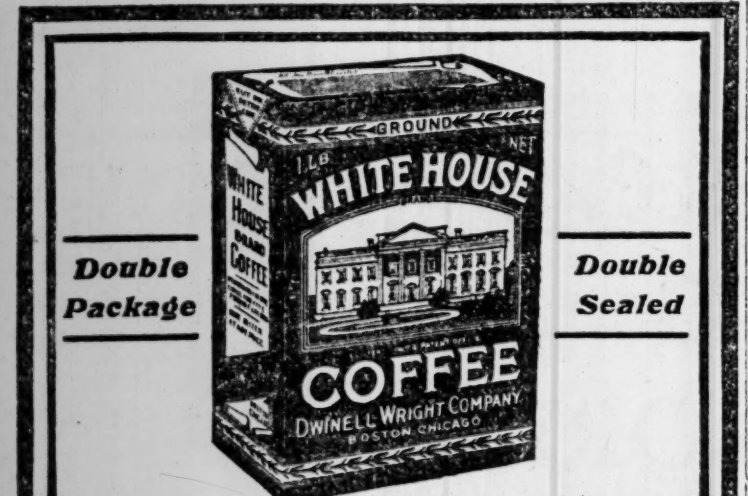

But you will be delighted with Colotone for it will make you feel like a different person. Your eyes will sparkle with vitality and alertness; your brain will be clear and active; your complexion will be fresh and transparent, reflecting the purity of your blood; your digestion will be thorough and your appetite keen, for your food will taste delightful and you will agree with you; you will sleep and awake refreshed; your system will be full of vim and vigor; you will feel younger, stronger, vigorous—you will enjoy the pleasure of living.

Colotone starts on Colotone today. Nearly every person over twenty-five or thirty years of age, and many younger, need Colotone more or less. Your doctor will supply delighted with Colotone cannot possibly do you any harm—it can only do you good. Try it on our guarantee. It will help you live long, well and happily—(adv.)

Fitzgerald, Ga., October 3.—Secretary Gelders of the Jefferson Davis Highway association, received today the complete program of the pageant to be staged by the Tri-State Exposition at Savannah on October 31, which has been set aside by the exposition management as Jefferson Davis Highway day. Hundreds of motorists from along the adopted route of the highway, will motor to Savannah for the pageant.

The motorcade will start from Fitzgerald October 30 when cars from Albany, Sylvester and Ashburn will join the Fitzgerald contingent and motor to Vidalia, where the night will be spent. Albany, Rhine, Milan, McKen, Alamo, Mt. Vernon and Gluew autoists will join the motorcade at Vidalia and motor to Savannah, being joined en route by motorists from Lyons, Reidsville, Clayton and Pembroke.

More than a hundred cars are to go to Savannah from this division of the highway. Eastman, Dublin, Wrightsville, Bartow and Louisville on the Richmond division of the Jefferson Davis highway will also send representatives in automobiles to join in the celebration.

Elaborate preparations are being made by Savannah civic organizations for the motorcade. The pageant at the Chatham county line. The pageant is being especially organized under the supervision of Miss Helen Gertrude Davis, of Jacksonville, Fla., a grandniece of Jefferson Davis.

TAKING CHILDREN IS NOT KIDNAPING, GAMBLE ASSERTS

Jacksonville, Fla., October 3.—Presenting official certified copies of the Paris divorce decree which show that there was no provision for the custody of the children, Robert Howard today made a statement to The Associated Press denying that he had kidnapped his children, Catherine and Robert Howard, Jr., from his divorced wife, Virginia Gamble, when he took them from her Huntington, Long Island home on September 25 and brought them to his home in this city.

The divorce decree says nothing of the children except the fact of their existence and, Mr. Gamble says, has as much right to their custody as Mrs. Gamble. Contrary to the reports that Mrs. Gamble was not informed of their whereabouts, Mr. Gamble says she received direct word from him the day following Tuesday, September 25, when he left New York, that he had the children and that they were well and happy.

Mr. Gamble says his divorced wife is making preparations to sail for England where she had lived a great part of her life and intended to take the children out of the United States, thereby depriving him the opportunity to see or be with them at all.

Speeding Ambassador Asks Return of Fine On Plea of Immunity

Charleston, W. Va., October 3.—West Virginia has been asked to return $5,000 taken by a town policeman as bond on a speeding charge, to Otto L. Weidelt, German ambassador to the United States, it became known today when correspondence on the incident was made public.

The ambassador motoring with Dr. Dinkhoff, counsel to the embassy; Dr. Johannes Jantzen, Frau Jantzen, Vice Consul Baer, was stopped by a policeman in the town of Bolivar, Jefferson county. The officer charged the ambassador with speeding and, according to the correspondence, was deaf to pleas of diplomatic immunity, threatening to lock up the motorists.

He released them on a bond of $5,000 in the absence of the mayor.

Secretary of State Hughes, when informed of the incident, referred it to Governor Morgan of West Virginia. Efforts are being made by state officials to recover the $5,000.

In a letter to the governor, C. E. Hiner, a state road commissioner, said: "I regret exceedingly that I do not have the privilege of refunding this fine in his honor, the German ambassador, in person, as I assure you it would give me great pleasure to pay him in German marks."

NEW DAILY PAPER FOR VALDOSTA SOON

Valdosta, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—It is announced that Valdosta is to have a new daily newspaper. The new paper will be known as "The Sun," a morning daily and will make its appearance on or about November 1. It is understood the new publication will be edited by J. Fred Smith, who has just returned from Baltimore, where he has been engaged in business for some time. It is also understood that Mr. Roth, a well-known newspaper man, will be associated with Mr. Smith in the publication of "The Sun."

Stokes Case Postponed.
New York, October 3.—The second trial of the divorce suit brought by W. E. D. Stokes, wealthy realty operator, against Helen Elwood Stokes, today was postponed until next Monday.

Rate of Divorce In United States Shows Increase

Washington, September 3.—One divorce to 7.6 marriages in the United States last year, is the record disclosed today by the census bureau's marriage and divorce survey, the first since 1916, when there was only one divorce to almost 2.9 marriages. There were only one-fifth more divorces and about one-fifth fewer marriages per 100,000 of population last year than in 1916. The statistics, which include figures for every state, were issued without comment.

There were 1,125,518 marriages recorded last year, while in 1916 there were 1,040,684, showing a numerical increase of 84,834. To every 100,000 population, however, there were only 1,033 marriages in 1922, as compared with 1,055 in 1916, a decrease of 2.05 per cent.

Maryland led in the marriage rate with 1,039 per 100,000 of population. Arkansas was second with 1,487, Florida third with 1,463, and Mississippi fourth with 1,454. North Dakota, with 575, had the lowest rate.

Divorces granted last year totaled 148,554 for the whole country, against 112,036 in 1916; increase of 36,518. To every 100,000 of population there were 14.8 divorces in 1922, as compared with 11.2 in 1916; an increase of 21.4 per cent.

Texas led the country in the number of divorces in 1922, with a total of 12,390, which was one-fifth of the number of marriages in that state. Illinois was second in the number of divorces, with 10,985; Ohio third with 10,182, and California fourth with 9,227.

South Carolina reported no divorces, as its laws permit none. The District of Columbia had the smallest number, 161, and the lowest rate per 100,000 population with 37. Nevada was second with 40 per 100,000; North Carolina third with 50, and North Dakota fourth with 51.

Nevada has the largest number of divorces per 100,000 population, with 1,325, and the number of marriages there was lower than the number of divorces, totaling 1,208, per 100,000 population. Oregon had the second largest number of divorces per 100,000 population with 311; Oklahoma with 262, and Texas fourth, with 239.

There was one divorce to 35.8 marriages in the District of Columbia to 22.6 marriages in New York, to 19.4 in Georgia and 16.8 in North Carolina.

PARSON BEATEN UP FOR KISSING BRIDE TO RETAIN HIS JOB

Boston, October 3.—Rev. George L. Paine, who received a beating early in July at the hands of Lieutenant Wesley McLaren Hague, U. S. N., on account of a kiss which the minister, who had married the pair, gave the lieutenant's wife, will continue as executive secretary of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches.

The board of directors of the federation, voting after a five-hour session yesterday, refused by a vote of 27 to 4, to accept his resignation.

The board statement said the incident was referred to as "essentially an offense against high manners and the highest type of behavior" only in view of the fact that Lieutenant Hague, in a signed statement had said that "neither he nor his wife believed at any time that there was any evil intent in Mr. Paine's action."

Although the statement continued, the board condemned this "type of behavior" it "recognized that the unwisdom of this act has been freely and frankly acknowledged" and that it should be treated accordingly.

PARK HEAD PUBLISHES SWIMMING FIGURES

A total of 115,264 swimmers enjoyed swimming in the various pools around the city during the season just ended, according to figures made public by L. L. Wallis, general manager of parks, Wednesday.

The records disclosed attendance at the various pools as follows: Piedmont park, 41,258; Grant, 30,190; Olympic, 22,025; Madison, 11,117; Moseley, 5,693; and Washington, 3,383.

NOVEL TRANSMISSION INVENTED FOR AUTO

London, October 3.—The mechanism of the automobile will be completely revolutionized by a new form of transmission invented by George Constantinesco, who devised the synchronization gear that enabled machine guns to fire through the blades of airplane propellers during the war, according to the technical newspaper Motor.

This publication says that Constantinesco's invention dispenses with clutch, gear box and the conventional axle drive, and provides a variable gear which automatically adjusts itself to load and gradient. The invention also is said to cheapen the operating cost of the automobile.

MANY ATHENS PEOPLE TO ENDEAVOR SESSION

Athens, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—Between fifty and seventy-five delegates from Athens will attend the Northeast Georgia Christian Endeavor convention, which opens in Elberton Friday afternoon and closes Sunday. Starting out with a goal of 500 delegates, enrollment of delegates has gone considerably beyond that mark. G. L. Johnson, district president, states.

The opening session will be held Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Presbyterian church. Rev. James Barfield of Monroe will deliver the principal address.

N. Y. POLICE CAPTURE
$50,000 BOOZE YACHT

New York, October 3.—Three police boats trapped and captured without a shot a $50,000 gasoline yacht with $50,000 worth of whisky on board in the East river early today. Police maneuvering forced the craft in shore after engine trouble had forced her to cut down her speed. Four men were arrested.

A 70-foot cruiser, trim as a millionaire's yacht, showed a clear pair of heels to the police boats until a gasoline fuel pipe clogged. The craft, carrying a life boat on which, half obliterated, appeared the name Atlanta.

The police said that the yacht was the running mate of the Cigarette, which has been trailed by police customs and prohibition agents for several months.

Georgia Crop and Credit Conditions Are Improved

One of the most authoritative and detailed reports on farming conditions in Georgia which has been made public in recent years has been furnished in a letter addressed to R. L. J. Smith, of Commerce, by Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Brown. The letter was in reply to one from Mr. Smith, asking for information on crops and credits in Georgia, in order to secure authentic information on which to base a speech Mr. Smith had been called on to make in one of the larger cities of the east.

In asking for the information, Mr. Smith says "I know of no one in all Georgia who is so well posted as to the actual conditions of our present crops (especially cotton and corn crops) as yourself nor do I know any one anywhere whose report on such conditions, as they actually exist, can depend upon more absolutely than such a report coming direct from you."

$240,000,000 Crop Value.

In his reply, Commissioner Brown states that if present prices remain, the total value of Georgia crops for 1923 will be approximately $240,000,000, an increase over 1922, when the total value was $211,000,000, and over 1921, when it was $177,000,000. That the 1923 value will even exceed the figure given above is probable, says the commissioner, by reason of the anticipated increase in prices caused by orderly and cooperative selling, which has made wonderful strides in this state.

Cotton remains the biggest money crop, says Mr. Brown, the 1923 crop, including seed, being expected to yield an aggregate sum in excess of $120,000,000. Other crops are rapidly taking their place as important revenue producers, however, the following being listed among those which have been most successfully grown: Corn, wheat, oats, rice, potatoes, sweet potatoes, tobacco, rice, bay, sorghum, syrup, peanuts, apples, peaches, pears, sugar cane and various kinds of feed crops.

Replace Cotton Crop.

These crops have largely been cultivated to take the place of cotton as a result of the ravages of the boll weevil, the type of crop raised varying, of course, with the locality.

Peanuts are named as an important south Georgia product, with thousands of acres of new groves planted and the industry rapidly growing into first importance. The total value of this crop last year is placed at over $2,000,000.

The corn yield in Georgia has been considerably increased of recent years. The state will probably produce this year about 400,000 bushels. There was also produced in 1923, in addition to the corn, about 300,000 tons of forage from corn tops. An estimated value of $1,500 per hundred is placed upon this.

Pimento peppers have proven profitable in some sections of the state. About ten or twelve counties are growing this crop at the present time.

There are now eight cheese factories and seventeen creameries in the state, with the dairy industry growing daily in importance in various sections.

While 1923 saw a decline in the number of cars of watermelons shipped from Georgia, as compared to 1922, there was an increase in price which partially offset this. Thirteen thousand cars were shipped in 1922, with 7,100 for 1923 up to September 1.

$10,000,000 In Peaches.

A value of over $10,000,000 is placed upon the 8,800 cars of peaches shipped out of the state in 1923.

Tobacco has made a wonderful record this year in south Georgia, with prices received very favorable. Production of this new crop in 1923 exceeded 12,000,000 pounds. Of this, somewhat over 9,000,000 pounds comes from the new bright leaf area in southern central Georgia, about 2,500,000 pounds from the cigar tobacco area of southwest Georgia and the balance from scattered areas of bright tobacco in north Georgia. It has so happened this year that the best tobacco sections were those where the cotton crop has been almost a complete failure, this year proving a life saver in many parts of the state.

Poultry production has made wonderful strides recently, the increase for 1923 in the state being put at approximately 10 per cent. Net receipts from this source for the year will probably exceed $5,000,000. The total value of poultry products raised on the farms of Georgia and consumed within the state during 1923 is put at over $16,000,000.

The work of the Peanut association is given the chief credit by Mr. Brown for the manner in which this crop is taking a prominent place in Georgia farm life since the advent of the weevil.

Coop Bodies Help.

The various cooperative associations, Mr. Brown points out, handling cotton, peanuts and Georgia cane syrup, have announced that they have made ample arrangements to take care of their members in a financial way. The Georgia Cotton Growers' Cooperative association has stated that it will advance to its members $75.00 per bale on cotton at time of delivery; the Peanut association will advance $60.00 per ton on peanuts (last year, before this association was organized, the price of peanuts at the opening of the season was only $60 per ton.) The Syrup association is ready to take care of members and make necessary loans to carry on their business. Aside from these associations, bankers, warehousemen and farmers are experiencing no difficulty, as a general rule, in getting loans on crops that are in merchantable condition.

Credit Conditions Good.

While admitting that in some sections there have been almost total crop failures where, of course, the situation is not so good, Mr. Brown asserts that, on the whole, the credit conditions are fairly good. The farmers of Georgia have not yet wholly recovered from the period of deflation which started in 1920, he says, and it will take years to overcome the effects of this deflation, coupled with the almost simultaneous attack of the boll weevil. Georgia's agriculture is going steadily forward, however, he says, and making wonderful strides. It will only be a question of time until the state will be in more prosperous condition than she has ever been.

Referring to the reported exodus of negroes from the farms, the commissioner says that the best available figures show that about 32,000 negroes left the farms during the year ending April 16 last. For the same period about 8,000 white farm hands also left agriculture. This, however, he says does not mean that the negro left the state, the department having no record on how many of these workers have simply gone to live in the various cities of the state.

Fewer Idle Acres.

Despite this condition there was, the letter points out, a marked increase in the percentage of land planted this year as compared to 1922, this being most pronounced in the central portion of the state. Estimates for 1922 placed the amount of idle land in central Georgia at 30 per cent while this was decreased in 1923 to 27 per cent. Taking the state as a whole, it is estimated that in 1923 17 per cent of the land was idle, compared to 19 per cent in 1922.

One of the great needs of the state, says the commissioner, is more labor and more independent land-owner farmers. Many large estates have been subdivided in recent years and sold to small farmers who are buying homes and becoming independent. The results from this movement can be nothing but good, says Mr. Brown, but there is still a need for more of this kind of thing.

The shortage of labor has been met in many places, he says, by a change in production from cotton to feed and other crops which could be handled with less labor.

The letter gives a broad insight into farming conditions in Georgia unique in its view, unquestioned in its authenticity and valuable in its information.

CREDIT MEN SEEK TAXATION PLAN; WALKER TO TALK

Business men of Atlanta and this section will be invited to participate with Governor Walker and members of the state tax commission in discussion of the tax problem facing Georgia on Tuesday night, October 9, at a meeting of the Atlanta Association of Credit Men.

The governor was first invited by the credit men to address them at their October meeting, but later this invitation was extended to members of the commission. Plans now are to hold the meeting at 6:30 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce, and in addition to credit men, the capacity of the hall will be at the disposal of business men generally who wish to make reservations.

The National Association of Credit Men was one of the first organizations to act upon the subject of taxation, recommending that state and municipal governments take up budgeting of expenses. This fact renders the October 9 meeting here of particular interest as it is in line with the recommendations of the national body.

COUNTY TO FINANCE HIGHLAND EXTENSION

Concrete paving, gas mains and street car service were assured a delegation of residents of North Highland avenue who appeared before the Fulton county board of commissioners at its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon. North Highland avenue extends from Virginia avenue to the intersection of Highland avenue and Lanier Boulevard, a distance of approximately 4,000 feet.

Headed by Robert H. Jones and J. R. Smith, 100 residents of the neighborhood appeared in the interest of the improvement, which, it is said, will increase the tax value to the extent of $1,500,000. The commissioners went on record as willing to "pay the city's part" of the work, with only one dissenting vote, and that to relieve residents of all costs. It is estimated that the cost will be between $6,000 and $7,000.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS TO GIVE PLAY FRIDAY

A large audience is expected to witness the play offered by members of Mrs. C. E. Betts' Sunday school class of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church, which is to be staged Friday night at the Highland school. Advance sale of tickets indicate a large attendance.

Members of the class who will take part in the play include: Misses Jennie Falks, Margaret Roberts, Evelyn Hollingsworth, Evelyn Gay, Laura Lyle Davidson, Lillian Spratling, Camille Downs, Sarah White, Margaret Bramlett, Dorris Baker and Dorothy Brumby.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets will go to the church building fund, pledged by the class.

WAR-TIME RAIL MEN GOVERNMENT WORKERS

According to a ruling of the Georgia court of appeals, handed down Wednesday, railroad men who were in the employ of Walker D. Hines, director general of railroads during the period of government direction of all lines during the war, were employees of the U. S. government and not of the various railroads upon which they worked.

The case was that of the A. B. & A. railroad, against McClelland, appellant from Coffee county. A default judgment was returned but the road denied service. According to the record, service was made against a man named Raulerson, agent at Nichols, Ga., but he made the claim that he was working for the U. S. director general, Hines, and his claim was sustained by the appellate court.

Although affirmed by the superior court of Berrien county, an award of the Georgia Workmen's Compensation board was reversed Wednesday by the state court of appeals. The case was that of Mrs. Fannie Corbett against the Berrien Lumber company and the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company. Mrs. Corbett was awarded $5 per week for 300 weeks for the death of her husband but the higher court held that, at the time of his death, he was not in the employ of the lumber company, but was working for E. G. Bruce, who operated a shingle mill in connection with the company's saw mill.

ATLANTA BOY WINS HONOR AT HARVARD

Harmon W. Caldwell, of Atlanta, son of Mrs. Lillie D. Caldwell, of 388 East Georgia avenue, has been elected to the editorial staff of "Law Review," official organ of the Harvard university law school, according to information received here by his mother.

The honor of being elected to this position is one of considerable merit and characterizes the high regard felt for the young Atlanta by his fellow students.

GEORGIA BEEKEEPERS PLAN ANNUAL MEETING

L. C. Walker, of Alma, secretary-treasurer of the Georgia Beekeepers association, Wednesday, announced the program for the annual convention, October 12, in the Agricultural building at the Southeastern fair. The program of addresses arranged includes the following: "Honeydew Honey," F. M. Baldwin, Mount Vernon, Ga.; "Package Bees," J. W. Sherman, Valdosta; "Nuclei," A. R. Irish, Savannah; "All Phases of the Foulbrood Situation," S. V. Brown, Bazley. Others who will speak on subjects of their own choosing are J. W. Wilder, Macon; N. L. Stapleton, Colquitt; T. W. Livingston, Norman Park; D. W. Howell, Shellman; T. V. Cantrell, Cleveland, and W. C. Barnard, Glennville.

FIFTH WARD SEEKING POLICE SALARY HIKE

Election of a new president, discussion of the movement to secure raises in salary for policemen and firemen and launching of a movement to "make things hot" for local tax dodgers will be features of a meeting of the Fifth Ward Civic club tonight in the English avenue school. J. E. Bowden is now president of the organization, which has been active in improvement matters in the fifth ward and throughout the city.

PEACH EXCHANGE IS REORGANIZED

Macon, Ga., October 3.—(Special.) The Georgia Peach Growers' Exchange, a cooperative marketing association, with headquarters in Macon, which is to take the place of the Georgia Fruit Exchange, was perfected here today at a meeting of 400 of the leading peach growers of the state. The new exchange, organized along the lines of cooperative associations in California and Florida, is designed to stabilize the peach industry and will control the handling, distribution and sale of the fruit.

The committee which drafted the organization plan, was composed of W. B. Hunter, of Cornelia, president of the Georgia Fruit Exchange; P. J. A. Berckmans, of Mayfield; J. W. Hodge, of Elko; E. M. McKenney, of Monticello, and C. H. Neisler, of Reynolds, appointed by the exchange, and five growers: M. Felton Hatcher, of Macon; J. C. Walker, of Marshallville; J. L. Benton, of Monticello; C. E. Martin, of Fort Valley; T. A. Matthews, of Thomaston. M. Felton Hatcher was named chairman of the committee.

Local associations of the Georgia Peach Growers' Exchange will be organized in twenty-five counties of the state, with the following places as headquarters: Monticello, Gray, Haddock, Macon, Byron, Fort Valley, Perry, Marshallville, Monticello.

Rheumatic Agony

NOW EASILY ENDED

It does not matter to me whether you are disabled with rheumatism or have only occasional twinges. I know that Allenhu, my own discovery, will stop the rheumatic pain with the gnawing pains and reduce the swollen joints, says Mr. Allen.

I know it will dissolve the uric acid deposits that have become deeply imbedded in joints and muscles and quickly drive every trace of rheumatism from your body. I know this because I was crippled for years and many times was unable to work, and Allenhu made a well, robust, healthy man of me.

I know because since I cured myself hundreds have taken Allenhu and speedily rid themselves of this agonizing disease.

No matter how severe your case, I urge you to put your faith in the prescription that it took me years to perfect—a prescription that made a new man of me after doctors tried and failed.

Allenhu is no laggard; it starts right in at once; it gets into the blood, searches out the poisonous uric acid deposit and in two days starts to drive the concentrated impurities that cause the pain, out of the blood through the natural channels.

GIFTS THAT LAST

INDICT FOR SALE OF 'CANNED HEAT'

Albany, Ga., October 3.—Albany drug store and grocery store proprietors, seven of whom were indicted by the grand jury in Dougherty county superior court yesterday on charges of violating the prohibition law in connection with the sale of "canned heat," were explained today that they had no intention of violating either the state or federal laws and that they consulted officers before making the sales.

C. D. Robinson, one of the most prominent druggists in Albany and one of the defendants, declared that he consulted Albany police officers and United States district court officers as soon as he discovered that his sales of "canned heat" were in excess of what is normally required for cooking purposes. George E. White, United States commissioner, Robinson stated, sent samples of the product to the government chemists at Washington and these ruled that the product did not violate the Volstead act, but that it was a beverage and that the practice of drinking "canned heat" spread to members of the white race with the result that drug stores and grocery stores sold it faster than they could get it. More than half of the cases of drunkenness in Albany in the last several months have been caused by use of this product, he stated.

In addition to indicting local dealers, the grand jury also returned an indictment against the Theroz Manufacturing company, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., which manufactures the product. It is believed in some quarters that the indictments were returned largely as a test in an effort to break up the sale of a product that makes violations of the prohibition law easy, even if the product itself does not constitute a violation.

CONTAINS POISON, SAY MAKERS.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., October 3.—Ezra H. Hayes, factory manager of the Theroz Manufacturing company, here, said today that he received notification of an indictment of the company at Albany, Ga., for the manufacture and sale of "canned heat." Several persons, he stated, are contained in the company's product, he said, among them being dehydrated alcohol. He could not explain how the product was used as a beverage. The headquarters of the Theroz company are in New York.

R. A. Gordon Is Off To Attend Boston Meet Of Elks Trustees Board

Mr. R. A. Gordon, grand trustee B. P. O. E. leaves Friday noon for New York and Boston, where he goes to attend the annual meeting of the grand trustees and the grand exalted rulers. The business of the meeting is to arrange hotel accommodations for the Elks' convention, which is the national home of the Elks. This is the regular semi-annual meeting, the law of the order being that the bodies must meet at the national home twice a year.

"Bob" Gordon, as he is popularly known in Atlanta, has for several years, been very active in the political affairs of the city; serving at present as mayor pro tem, also alderman of the fourth ward. Many of Mr. Gordon's friends have recently been urging him to run for mayor in the next election, but when approached on this subject, Mr. Gordon said that he had not made up his mind just what he would do.

Reward for Mison On Murder Charge Posted by Governor

Reward of $150 for the capture of Ira Bloodworth in Wilkinson county on February 23, 1915, was offered Wednesday by Governor Walker on the request of Boyle Campbell, solicitor general of the state, who stated that the killing was a particularly atrocious one and that both parties were white. Solicitor Campbell did not give any reason for the delay since the date of the crime.

A second reward of $200 was offered for the capture and conviction of the unknown person or persons who killed W. T. Trout of Clayton county on the night of September 5 last.

BAINBRIDGE BRIDGE WORK WILL PROCEED

Contractors Wednesday were ordered by the state highway board to continue excavating for pier foundations for the new bridge at Bainbridge. The hearing was held at the office of the state highway department on Tuesday, with John N. Holder, chairman, presiding. Work on the bridge will be resumed immediately.

Contractors had asked that they be relieved of further excavation on account of the uncertainty of finding bed rock in the river for pier foundations.

By order of the court, the excavation will continue to a depth of 10 feet in contract specifications. If bed-rock has not been reached at that depth, the court has provided for a series of tests to estimate the depth it will be necessary to go.

COURT TO PENALIZE APPEALS FOR DELAY

Appeals carried to higher courts for purpose of delay only are to be penalized by the Georgia court of appeals. This was clearly indicated Wednesday when the court assessed damages against plaintiffs in five cases on this ground.

One case, that of Alex Johnson against Mrs. E. J. Hicks, was from the Fulton county circuit court. In opinion, Justice Roscoe Luke said: "It being clearly apparent that the bill of exceptions was prosecuted in this court for delay only, the statutory damages of ten per cent are awarded to the defendant in error."

Other cases in which damages were assessed on this ground were four appeals from the Berrien court of Bailey against the Miller Hardware

Powers Swears Gleason Took Bunko Money

Lamar, One of Woodward's Alleged Victims, Tells of Way He Was Fleeced.

Abe Powers, convicted confidence man, who was sentenced three years ago to serve from two to five years in the state penitentiary following his confession of operations in connection with the famous Floyd Woodward bunko gang, took the witness stand for the state Wednesday afternoon in the trial of Lem Gleason, charged with acting as a steersman for the same syndicate. Gleason had entered a plea of guilty to the charges two weeks ago, but later withdrew it.

Powers was called by the state to show Gleason's connection with the bunko operations, and to identify certain memoranda and documents found on Gleason's person at the time of his arrest. He testified that Gleason had acted as a "steersman" at the "exchange" on West Peachtree street and recounted the transaction in which Wade Lamar and M. E. Holly were swindled out of $11,500 during the operations of the syndicate in Atlanta.

Says Gleason Took Money.

According to Powers' testimony, who followed him on the stand, Lamar had taken charge of the sum of money brought to the "exchange" on Grand Avenue by Lamar and Powers. Lamar stated that he was arrested by Reno Hamlin, who is under sentence at the state farm in connection with the same case, in the Terminal station on West Peachtree street, upon his arrival in Atlanta from Birmingham, Ala. Later they met Abe Powers, who took them to the "exchange" on West Peachtree street. Powers told him, Lamar stated, that he represented a large "horse racing association."

Later Powers solicited financial aid from both Hamlin and Lamar, the witness testified. Hamlin, who Lamar said gave him his name at the time as "M. E. Holly," consented to help. Powers told him, Lamar stated, that he would be unable to raise any money, but that a day or so later he told him that he had raised the money. Powers would "win" him $7,000 if he could put up $11,500.

Holly consented and returned with the money. It is believed in some quarters that the money was put in a suit case and taken to the exchange, Lamar stated, and Powers and Hamlin together with a friend of his, M. E. Holly, gathered around a table in the office on West Peachtree street. Lamar testified that Hamlin and Powers both dropped bundles into a box, which, he said, was supposedly currency.

Gleason then entered, he stated, and removed the suit case.

"That was the last we ever saw of the $11,500," Lamar said.

Prisoners to Testify.

At this point in Lamar's statement, Judge John D. Humphries, before whom several members of the Floyd Woodward gang have been tried, called a recess of court. Lamar will resume his testimony at 9 o'clock this morning.

It is expected that other bunko operators now serving sentences will be called to testify for the state before conclusion of Gleason's trial.

Gleason appeared apparently disinterested in the tedious court procedure. He curled a slight growth of waxed hair upon his upper lip, pausing occasionally to adjust a brilliant green cravat.

CITY IS BLAMED BY FAIR EXPERTS FOR ASPHYXIATION

Deadly fumes from a cauldron of molten lead came near causing the death of a woman yesterday in a shop recently opened at 11 North Forsyth street, and from the fact that the woman died, the city is being blamed for asphyxiation.

The woman, who was named as Mary Taylor, was found dead in the shop on Tuesday morning. The cause of death was asphyxiation by fumes from a cauldron of molten lead.

The fumes are alleged to have emanated from a pot of lead which was being used by a detachment of city workmen at the Marietta street entrance of the Forsyth street underpass.

According to the petition, the woman was suddenly stricken with a nausea and fainting to the floor in a faint, on Tuesday, September 25. Investigation disclosed the source of the poisonous fumes and efforts by the city to remove the pot from the shop, to have the pot removed resulted in a cut refusal from C. C. Holt, foreman of the repair gang, the petition alleges.

WOOLWORTH TO OPEN NEW PEACHTREE STORE

Announcement was made Wednesday that the F. W. Woolworth company had leased the store at 843 Peachtree street, where they will open one of their branches for the sale of five and ten-cent goods.

The lease was made directly with the owner of the property, L. Houshoun Johnson, and is for a period of fifteen and one-half years, from November 1, 1923, to May 1, 1939. The total consideration is $85,100.

This store is a new building and is 50x50 feet in dimensions with a large basement. The opening of a popular-priced store of this character is an important indication of the value placed upon this rapidly-growing retail district for future development. The store is located between Tenth and Eleventh streets.

Poison Only Hope In Weevil Fight, Is Soule's Belief

Athens, Ga., October 3.—(Special.) "Farmers of northeast Georgia who use their cotton are to be congratulated on the relatively large yields they are obtaining," stated Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the Georgia College of Agriculture, today in regard to the crop condition in this section of the state. "While many are disappointed with the results obtained, they should not lose sight of the fact that this was one of the most difficult seasons to fight the boll weevil, and that the results are a good indication of the success of the fight."

"The college has advocated the use of calcium arsenate since it was first shown to be the best weapon with which to fight the weevil," said Dr. Soule, "and now feel fully justified in the position taken. We have much to learn about the use of poison yet, and the contradictory results of some farmers may lead to an undue skepticism in some sections."

"The most successful planters here this year that I have seen are those who have used calcium arsenate in a safe and sane way, we can use one-half bale per acre and up. It is true that it will add considerably to the cost of the crop, but the use of it will as well as its mind to pay for it."

"We feel that from our experience this year that the light is breaking so far as the future of agriculture is concerned, and that we are now rehabilitating ourselves on the basis of the economic principle of the future of the state."

Dr. Soule stated that in his estimation, Clarke county will produce 40 per cent of the cotton crop, a large part of the credit for this yield being due to the judicious use of calcium arsenate.

Coolidge Employees Will Have Barbecue At Cascade Springs

Officials and employees of the F. J. Coolidge & Sons Company, dealers in paints and glass, will assemble in numbers of 200 strong at Cascade Springs Thursday afternoon in celebration of the annual barbecue and outing of the concern.

For several years the Coolidge company has provided an annual barbecue for its employees. The affair this year will be at Cascade Springs in order to allow those present to dance after the barbecue.

A parade of automobiles and trucks of the company will leave the company's warehouse, 424 Marietta street, at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon and go directly to the springs. The "Great Iron" quartet of the Elks' Troubadours will take an important part in the program. A number of other entertainment features are anticipated.

Highest Court to Rule Upon Tax Equalization Law's Constitutionality

The case of Major C. E. McGregor against the tax collector of Warren county, which was recently decided by the supreme court of Georgia in favor of Warren county, will be argued in the supreme court of the United States next Friday, by Colonel J. D. McGregor, counsel for plaintiff in error. Major McGregor's main contention was that the tax equalization law of Georgia is unconstitutional on the ground that it deprived him of his property without due process of law.

Runaway Blimp Is Dismantled For Trip Home

Woodstock, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—A detachment of soldiers from Fort McPherson today dismantled the runaway "army blimp" "A.O.1," which broke away from its pilot at an Illinois air field and came to earth here Tuesday.

The dismantled balloon was placed on army trucks and was carried to Atlanta, where it will be shipped back to its home field in Illinois.

The Death Penalty

The death penalty is inflicted almost daily in Atlanta and surrounding territory without judge, jury or any semblance of legal process.

The Constitution guarantees that no one shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, but this does not prevent the capital punishment of innocent people which occurs so often in Atlanta and vicinity that the public has almost become callous to the outrage.

Any man who willingly risks killing another is a potential murderer.

Any man who willingly risks losing his own life is a potential suicide.

Yet the taking of such risks is so frequent that they have almost ceased to shock us.

How long will the people of this community tolerate a condition which can be ended by a rigid enforcement of the traffic laws?

It appears that parking is permitted on our most crowded streets, because some people imagine it will inconvenience them a little.

What is convenience when human life is at stake?

Why not grapple with this problem manfully and stop the frightful sacrifice of human life?

Any man who willingly risks losing his own life is a potential suicide.

Yet the taking of such risks is so frequent that they have almost ceased to shock us.

How long will the people of this community tolerate a condition which can be ended by a rigid enforcement of the traffic laws?

It appears that parking is permitted on our most crowded streets, because some people imagine it will inconvenience them a little.

What is convenience when human life is at stake?

Why not grapple with this problem manfully and stop the frightful sacrifice of human life?

ROPER LOHMAN TO FACE YOUNG STRIBLING

Columbus Excitedly Awaited Time For Big Bout

Throngs Crowd the Streets On Eve of Big Title Fight; Advance Seat Sale $16,000

Mrs. Stribling Confident of Victory for Young Stribling Over Mike McTigue for Light Heavyweight Championship Today.

By BOB ROPER.

Columbus, Ga., October 3.—I think that I have given to the readers of these articles quite a bit of information in regard to young Stribling, light-heavyweight champion of the south, and champion Mike McTigue, and now I will say a few words pertaining to the sporting element of Columbus, the hospitality shown by the people and the cooperation of the public in putting over the big world's championship bout in fine fashion.

Today the eighteen-year-old Macon school boy will appear in the greatest event in boxing annals of the south, when he attempts to wrest the studded crown of the light-heavyweight of the world before a tumultuous assemblage of fans from every nook and corner of the country.

Today, for the first time since I have been following the career of this Macon boy, I had the pleasure of shaking hands with "Ma" Stribling, mother of the challenger. A fine woman, in every respect, and delightful to be acquainted with.

"Ma" was in a good humor and in our conversation spoke frequently of her son's match tomorrow and the importance of the bout, but when she spoke to me in regard to her boy's chance with the Irishman did not hesitate to say that he would acquire the title.

This little city, one of the most progressive that Georgia can boast, is putting over an act that any other city of its size in the country would not take steps to do, and is in an excited mood and anxiously awaiting for the hour of three to toll off tomorrow, the time the championship program commences.

Fans from all parts of the country and the southern states, are running about the crowded streets, if not rushing to the nearest ticket office and purchasing pastebards for admittance in the drive driving park stadium.

Famous newspaper writers have arrived in the city and have tuned their typewriters in good shape for a busy afternoon of it tomorrow.

Among those here are Damon Runyon, one of the world's greatest feature writers; Ed Curley and his wife, of New York, and writer for the New York American; As the trains roll under the Terminal station shed tomorrow many more newspaper men are expected to arrive.

VA. ELEVEN WORKS HARD

University, Va., October 3.—Virginia is not one bit downhearted over the defeat at the hands of Furman university and the Orange and Blue varsity squad has gone to work with more effort than ever in their determination to pile up a score against Richmond university in the game next Saturday.

For in spite of the lost game Virginia is finding much ground for optimism in the superiority over the Purple Hurricane that were shown in the details of the play. Virginia gained 14 first downs to the two that were made by Furman and had an edge on the visitors in almost every department of the game.

A review of play-by-play score of the game shows that by running the ball in line plays Virginia gained 205 yards as compared with 48 yards gained by Furman. The visitors were unable to make a first down through the Orange and Blue line. Virginia completed 10 forward passes for a total advance of 147 yards, but the three whirlwind passes completed by the visitors came in opportune succession and earned them the winning touchdown. The visitors intercepted three of Virginia's attempted passes.

Welp Is Star.

Benny Arnold and Paul Welp were Virginia's stars in days through the line while Foster, Holland, and Welp worked well in the passing. Welp alone ran the ball forward for a gain of 151 yards, or more than three times as much as the entire Furman backfield could carry the ball toward Virginia's goal.

On account of injury sustained in practice Arnold was not at his best, but before his injuries forced him to leave the game he had broken through the Furman defense for gains of 40 yards, which was more than was advanced by both Herlong and Waters, who were the greatest gainers for the South Carolinians.

In gaining a victory Furman ran only 30 plays, 24 of them into the line and six by the pass route. Her-

SANDE RIDES U. S. ENTRY

New York, October 3.—A unique figure in the background of the controversy over the rights of the U. S. and My Own as candidates to race Papyrus is Jockey Earl Sande, premier rider of the American turf. Sande has had the leg up on both Zev and My Own in all of their important victories this season, and though he is under contract to Harry Sinclair, owner of Zev, he will ride America's colt buster in the International race with the English derbies winner, regardless of which horse is chosen by the jockey club's committee next Saturday.

Sande was not figured openly in the controversy resulting from failure to arrange a final trial race between the rival American thoroughbreds, but the jockey is said to have expressed his belief that My Own is better than Zev at a mile and a half, the distance of the International race. Sande's owner declined a trial race at this distance.

Sande carried Rear Admiral Grasso's colors on My Own in all of the season's five victories, four at Saratoga and the fifth in the national trial sweepstakes at Belmont Park recently. Except for Zev's first race this season when Jockey J. Fator had the mount, Sande has ridden the Rancocas colt to victory in seven of his other eight races, including the Kentucky derby.

FIRPO WILL GO IN MOVIES

New York, October 3.—Luis Firpo has forsaken temporarily the resined arena for the silver screen. It was learned today that the "Wild Bull of the Pampas" has accepted an offer of $100,000 from a Los Angeles motion picture concern for a silent drama, to be filmed in the pugilist's native Argentina.

Firpo, it was said, turned down a $200,000 movie contract, calling for the picture to be made in this country because of his desire to return to South America. He has decided definitely to sail for Buenos Aires on October 15 and expects to begin movie picture work within a few weeks after his arrival. Cinema paraphernalia and a supporting cast for Firpo will be taken to the Argentine.

NEW RECORD TO BE MADE IN SERIES

New York, October 3.—One new world's series record will result from the contest between the New York Giants and Yankees, while the McGraw men will have an opportunity to create another and the Ebbetts boys may equal one now in the record books.

The new record that is assured in this meeting of the same clubs for the third year in succession, is the nearest approach to this mark was when the Chicago Cubs and the Detroit Tigers met in the series in 1908. The Tigers won again the next year but the Pittsburgh Pirates won in the National league and then gave the Cubs' men their third straight setback.

If the Giants win this year it will be their third world's championship in succession, a feat no other team has ever accomplished. In that event the Yanks also would tie automatically the record of losing three series in a row, which the Giants and Tigers, the Giants lost in 1911 and 1913 to the Philadelphia Athletics and in 1912 to the Boston Red Sox.

What Lohman's record is not only a record in the series but one that has never been broken, was established here yesterday afternoon when Bell McEwen, a 21-year-old mare, won the second race of the three heats, the first being won by the same mare in 1:12 1/2.

A pace of more than a three-year-old, Bell McEwen made a mark of 2:07 1/4 for the mile. This was a five-year-old. When ten years old, the horse was retired and was bought some time after by a local sportsman as a brood mare. She had not entered a race in a little more than eleven years when she faced the second race of the three heats in the first of the three heats, the mare had been given as a present by the man who brought her to Rome.

In the first of the three heats, the mare finished a half-length behind the winner, but in both of the succeeding heats, she showed a clean pair of heels, the entire field and won handsily.

The Yankees return tomorrow to the stadium for a series with the Athletics that will wind up the season for both clubs. The Yankees expect to have workouts Monday and Tuesday on the Polo Grounds, home of their rivals, to familiarize themselves with the lights and angles of the reconstructed enclosure. The Giants go to Baltimore tomorrow to continue their series with the Orioles.

Crippled Oglethorpe Squad Ready for Georgia Contest

Petrels May Be Minus Services of Albaugh and Parrish in Tilt on Saturday in Athens.

By BILL MORROW.

A badly-battered and crippled band of Petrels will go into action Saturday against the Georgia Bulldogs, carrying with them the greatest threat of any Oglethorpe combination.

The injured list still holds the names of the five players who were injured in the game with the Black representatives on the gridiron. The Oglethorpe team will be fighting for a victory, but if the gods of the gridiron rule otherwise the Petrels will mass their strength and attempt to cut the Georgia total and force the Athens combination to be satisfied by a victory by a narrow margin.

Yankee Attack Built Around Ruth

Formerly known as "Baseball's Incurable" Slugger Brought Success to Team

New York, October 3.—Overshadowing even the excellent team play, the sterling work of the pitching staff and the uncanny field defense of the New York Yankees, American league pennant winners this season, were the performances of Babe Ruth, the year's star of the game.

Called the "Incurable Boy of Baseball," because of his displays of temperamental in 1921 and 1922, Ruth came back to the game this year with one idea—to give his best. He has not been the home-run hitter he was in 1921, when the all-time record for circuit bats in a season was set with his 59, but he has not been out of the game because of boyish pranks.

Ruth has been the greatest individual star in the present Yankee season. He has hit more runs apiece, but not as many as in 1921. His batting record, however, close around the 400 mark all season, is filled with singles, doubles and triples—blows that have made the Yankees a terror at bat that the given number of intentional bases on balls given him by opposing pitchers has set a new record.

Around Ruth—the new Ruth—the Yankees attack has been clustered throughout the season. Taking their cue from him the other members of the team settled into a perfect combination, with the result that the club has won the pennant with one of the greatest winning margins on record.

With Babe's return in 1921 the Yankees won their first pennant. Ruth set a new all-time record for home runs with 59 that year. The Yankees state that the world's best pitcher, Walter Johnson, was crushed and the Giants won the championship after eight contests. In 1922 the Yankees again won their race but failed to take a game from the Giants in the world's series. They tied one game and lost four.

After their lease on the grounds in Washington Heights expired in 1913 the Yankees moved to the Polo Grounds with the Giants for nine years, but after the unusually successful seasons of 1921 and 1922 the Yankees owners decided to build their own park. The Yankee Stadium, greatest baseball plant in the world, was opened to the public this year.

After some negotiations Colonel Huston, half owner of the Yankees sold his interest early this year to Colonel Ruppert for about $1,500,000. The Yankees moved to the new stadium in 1923. In 1915 the first season under the Ruppert ownership the Yankees won the pennant. The attendance at the baseball in New York the Yankees have finished as follows:

1907, second.
1908, sixth.

GLEASON AND TY WILL REMAIN AT POSTS

Chicago, October 3.—Kid Gleason, manager of the Chicago Americans, will not be dropped as manager of the club, nor will he replace Ty Cobb as manager of the Detroit Americans, according to the Chicago press. Examiner today, disposing of a number of rumors in fandom.

Ty Cobb is collecting $50,000 a year for back pay from the Detroit club. The first year of a five year contract. Ty Cobb can manage the Detroit club just as long as he lives, the Herald and Examiner quote Frank Navin of the Detroit club as saying: "Every baseball man in the country realizes he has all the faculties of a born leader."

A. LUQUE GIVEN BIG WELCOME IN CUBA

Havana, October 3.—(By the Associated Press.)—No conquering hero returning to his native land, could have received a more hearty welcome than did Adolfo Luque, the premier pitcher of the National league, when he arrived in Havana today.

Long before the steamer Governor Cobb came to her pier the wharves and nearby streets were jammed with thousands of admirers.

The army, navy and city, and the professional, semi-professional and amateur baseball leagues were represented in the parade that escorted the Cincinnati pitcher up to the offices of El Diario de La Marina, where toasts were drunk to his health. Several bands in the procession, and the people brought out every conceivable noise making instrument to add to the din raised by the shouts of "viva Luque."

He was showered with flowers along the route from the pier to the newspaper office.

LYNCH LOOKS FOR VICTORY

New York, October 3.—(Special.)—Joe Lynch, challenger for the bantamweight championship of the world in his home town and state, bantamweight champion of the world, today made a long statement in his behalf following his reinstatement with the New York State Boxing commission, along with his manager, Eddie Mead.

The bantamweight champion has gone through the formality of posting a $2,500 challenge forfeit for the Burman match. Lynch now claims that he does not fear Joe Burman or any bantamweight or featherweight alive.

It is so sure that he will defeat Joe Burman when they meet in a 15-round match at Madison Square Garden, October 12, that he now claims to have won the world's bantamweight title. Lynch has won 122-125 within 60 days following the Burman fight, in a match for the featherweight championship of the world.

Joe Lynch has won the fact that the Burman match is not as tough a one as the fans and writers think. He has boxed Burman five times, and has won all five. Another officer, versed in the language, was summoned. He said the writing resembled a Turkish name "Howsan Hezer."

A deputy coroner found two postcard photographs in the coat. One picture showed three girls in the uniform of nurses. Across the back of the card had been written "To Chick from India—my chums and I. Aren't they sweet looking? The other card contained the picture of a girl.

The coroner's physician, after examining the body, reported that the man had been dead about 24 hours.

KANSAS EDITOR SEES DRY PLANK AS HOPE OF G. O. P.

Emporia, Kan., October 3.—If the republican candidates in the 1924 election, elect, sleep and talk conservation this party will suffer the worst defeat it has known in years. William Allen White, well-known editor, declared editorially Wednesday.

"Nothing but prohibition would save a mossback ticket and a reactionary platform," the editorial said, mentioning that unless the candidates and the platform are not satisfactory to the liberal wing of the party, men like Pinckney, Kenyon, Hoover, Garfield, Wallace Borah, Capper and Hillman Johnson—the old guard will be whipped.

White predicted the injection of a strong prohibition issue into the party platform, should the democrats fail to carry the republicans to victory.

UNCLE SAM REWARDS NEGRO RAG PICKER

Washington, October 3.—Clydes would have difficulty in convincing Alfred Pettis, 75-year-old negro rag picker, who lives here, of the "ingratitude of the republic."

A treasury warrant for $3,230, reached him in today's mail with a note from the pension bureau that it represented back pension at the rate of $50 a month.

Pettis filed an application for pension ten years ago but failed to follow it up. The government mills continued to grind, however, the final get confirming his claim that he enlisted in the second colored infantry at Key West, Fla., in 1864, at the age of 16.

Warner, starting his last year in Pittsburg, is working on a different plan, which is to get enough power into his line so that his backfield will not be knocked to pieces. Even now he can put in a team that averages over 100 in the line and close to 150 in the back field. This policy enabled him to smash the slightly weaker Bucknell team three times as badly as last year.

Foster Sanford, down at Rutgers, has a bunch of stalwarts that are likely to make some trouble before the season is over, and West Virginia will find its work cut out for it when it meets the New Jersey boys in New York. Sanford has five men in his squad weighing more than 200 pounds. One of them, Hazel, formerly of Montclair High, is a backfield man, who carries 225 pounds of mature weight. Here is a man worth watching.

La Rose gazed a moment into the associate muzzle of a revolver, then he looked at the titan haired fellow fingered by Mrs. Caccavalo. Then he jumped through an open window.

When he returned with two policemen, the dance mistress was arrested. "I want these poor little wall flowers to have a good time and the only way I can get the boys to dance with them is to pull the gun," she explained at the police station.

With exposures never slower than 1-1,000,000 of a second a newly perfected camera is proving helpful to science.

McTigue Refunds $10,000 Paid Him By Legion Post On Eve of Scheduled Bout

Light-Heavyweight Challenger On Edge for Title Bout Will Mill With Substitute Opponent Today.

Columbus, Ga., October 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—Joe Lohman, light-heavyweight, or Captain Bob Roper, special staff correspondent for The Constitution, heavyweight, will face W. L. (Young) Stribling in the big arena erected here for the bout between Stribling and Mike McTigue.

Major Jones made the announcement following a lengthy conference with W. L. Stribling, father and manager of the youthful Georgia fighter, and Joe Jacobs, manager for McTigue.

Major Jones at the same time announced that McTigue had agreed to fight Stribling here within the next 90 days and had returned the $10,000 guarantee paid to him yesterday. It also was stated that the advance sale for the fight scheduled for this afternoon had reached $17,500 during the night.

Four physicians who examined the champion's hand made public a statement of their findings. It showed the clinical and X-ray examination had disclosed an "imperfectly healed" fracture of the meta carpal bone of the left thumb. The statement was signed by Doctors D. W. Baker, W. F. Jenkins, D. J. Fitzmaurice, and Dr. R. F. Tillery.

The statement, which was given out after midnight, follows: "We the undersigned have this the fourth day of October, 1923, examined the left hand of Mike McTigue and find an imperfectly healed fracture of the metacarpal bone of the left thumb. This opinion was arrived at after clinical and X-ray examination."

(Signed) "DR. D. W. BAKER, "DR. W. F. JENKINS, "DR. D. J. FITZMAURICE, "DR. R. F. TILLEY."

News of the champion's inability to enter the ring as a result of the city law and fire and within a short time of the morning newspaper office here was creating with disappointed fight fans some news. Groups on every street corner discussed the situation.

Special cars from all parts of Georgia, cities and towns in Alabama and Tennessee and fans from many sections of the south arrived here during the night. Many others including a special train from Macon were due this morning.

Headless and Nude Man's Body Found Near Public Pool

Pittsburg, Pa., October 3.—The headless and nude body of an unidentified white man was found in the girl's dressing room of the city swim pool on the south side here today. A trail of blood led from the building to the Monongahela river bank nearby. Police said they believed the head was thrown into the river.

The body was found by a workman who stopped at the dressing room to rest. It lay on the floor in a corner and covered with a coat and a pair of trousers.

Examination of the body disclosed two marks on the left arm. More attacks could make nothing of the marks, but a city officer, working on the case, said he believed it was a name, written in Arabic. Another officer, versed in the language, was summoned. He said the writing resembled a Turkish name "Howsan Hezer."

A deputy coroner found two postcard photographs in the coat. One picture showed three girls in the uniform of nurses. Across the back of the card had been written "To Chick from India—my chums and I. Aren't they sweet looking? The other card contained the picture of a girl.

The coroner's physician, after examining the body, reported that the man had been dead about 24 hours.

NEGRO ASSAILANT VICTIM IDENTIFIES

Raleigh, N. C., October 3.—John Goff was identified here today by the aged white woman of near Spruce Pine, N. C., as the negro who attacked her last week. Goff denied the crime and declared he had never seen the woman. The woman was accompanied by her husband and a Mitchell county deputy sheriff.

The deportation of negroes at Spruce Pine is the cause of the alleged attack, and Governor Morrison ordered troops there to preserve order.

If Goff, an escaped convict, was arrested near Morganton and brought to the penitentiary here for safe keeping. The aged woman visited the county prison this morning where she identified the negro.

NEW ORLEANS 'CHANGE BACKS WEEVL MEETING

New Orleans, September 3.—The board of directors of the New Orleans Cotton exchange tonight adopted a resolution indorsing the nationwide boll weevil menace conference to be held here October 24-26, and empowering Edward S. Butler, the president, to appoint any necessary committee to aid, and to assure cooperation on the part of full membership of the exchange. It was provided that copies of the resolution be sent to every cotton exchange in the country, to every spinning association and individual spinning interests.

"Not only is the supremacy of the United States in America as a cotton-producing nation being jeopardized by the boll weevil," said the resolution, "but our increasing supremacy as a cotton country is being threatened in a most serious way by the boll weevil, as well as all branches of agriculture."

The resolution effected the action of H. G. Heister, secretary of the exchange and a world authority on cotton, had estimated boll weevil damage during

Fort Worth and Pels Tie in Sixth Game of Series
Count Is Knotted in Eighth
By Panthers After Pelicans
Had Shoved Over 2 Markers

Contest Was Called Account of Darkness at End of Ninth—Series Now Stands Fort Worth 3 and New Orleans 2.

Panther Park, Fort Worth, Tex., October 3.—Although Jake Atx and his Fort Worth Cats staged a spectacular rally in the eighth inning here today, and coming from behind, knotted the count, they failed to clinch the Dixie title, as the best they could do with Larry Gilbert's scraggy Pelicans was a 2 and 2 tie. The game was called at the end of the ninth inning on account of darkness.

Art Ewoldt, the Pelican shortstop, kicked away what seemed a sure Pelican victory in the eighth inning when he staged a 3-0 race with Goldie Rapp, Cat third-sacker, and came out second best.

Ewoldt could have easily relieved Rapp, and the side, by tossing to Bogart, but elected the foot race. The Cat then jumped on Whitaker and drove him from the mound, making a couple of runs and tying the score. Art Phelan, pinch-hitter, supplied the hit that brought about Whitaker's downfall, rapping out a single when he hit for Stoner in the eighth.

Whitaker was almost invulnerable up to that inning. While hit rather freely, he kept the blows scattered and the locals rally never threatened at any time except the fatal one.

The Pelican scored in the first inning by hitting Stoner, Cat star, hard. Bogart's single, Gilbert's sacrifice, and "Snake" Henry's clean kick turned the trick.

In the third a walk issued to Gilbert, an infield out, and Schick's single gave the Pelicans their other run.

Hoffman's pass, Rapp's single, an error of omission by Ewoldt, and Phelan's hit accounted for all Fort Worth scores in the eighth.

The clubs played here again Thursday, the game starting at 3 o'clock.

First Inning. New Orleans—Bogart singled to left, Gilbert sacrificed to Kraft, unassisted. Henry was safe at first on an infield hit. Bogart scored. Rapp scored on Tucker's single to left. Schick popped to Tavenner. Foss forced Tucker at second. Rapp to Hoffman. One run, three hits, no errors.

Second Inning. New Orleans—Ewoldt popped to Rapp. Mize was safe on Hoffman's throw. Whitaker sacrificed. Stoner to Kraft. Mize was out at the plate trying to score on Bogart's single to center. Whitaker popped to Tavenner. Foss forced Tucker at second. Rapp to Hoffman. One run, three hits, no errors.

Third Inning. New Orleans—Gilbert walked. Henry filed out to Calvo. Tucker was out to second. Gilbert scored on Schick's single to center. Schick was out at second on a relayed throw. Calvo to Hawthorn. No runs, one hit, no errors.

FIREMEN ARE LOSERS, 12-10

Atlanta's constabulary triumphed over the firemen in eight innings of fast post-season baseball at Ponce de Leon park Wednesday afternoon before an audience that sat enthralled at exciting plays and the heavy hitting of Tubby Walton and Ed Edwards. The score was 12 to 8 when the game was finally called in the eighth.

Outstanding stars of the game were Guber, pitching for the Bluecoats, whose 14 strikeouts probably will stand as unequalled in semi-professional baseball circles, and the fielding and hitting of Tobe Edwards, former Tech varsity first baseman, who played second for the police.

Officer Weaver's sensational catch of a fly to deep center in the seventh frame robbed the firemen of three runs. Bishop, in the eighth, for the police, started at the bat also.

For the firemen Medlin at short, Davis at second and the catering of Powell were the stars.

Sergeant J. W. Blazer, manager for the police team, declared after the game that the police department would put a contender for the championship of Georgia in the field next year.

"We have a splendid nucleus to build around and I feel confident we can put out a champion team next season. Look out for us," he said.

Georgian's Photoplay Proves To Be Sensation At Hollywood Theater

Salt Lake City, Utah, October 3. (Special.)—At a previous showing of the motion picture, "The Light Giver," at the Hollywood, Cal., Apollo theater Saturday night, the demand for seats was so great a special "o'night" performance had to be run to take care of all who sought admission. "The Light Giver" was written and directed by Kenneth Stambaugh, a Piedmont college boy from Demorest, Ga. The applause accorded each performance spoke well of this picture's success. It is an unusual event in Hollywood when a review is held for a second showing.

Keith's Forsyth—(Keith vaudeville.) See advertising for program.

Howard Theater—All week, "The Spoilers," with Milton Sills and other screen features.

"One of Us." (At the Lyric.)

Another capacity crowd is anticipated for the matinee performance today of "One of Us," Broadway comedy drama hit, when it is presented again by the Forsyth players at the Lyric theater.

The Atlanta play-going public has found the play entirely to its liking at previous performances this week.

"One of Us" starts off with a bang when Fred Raymond, Jr., as a rich young sportsman in disguise, swoops into a roughneck dance hall, beats up a few rowdies and forces a girl, Clara Joel, into an informal marriage. It keeps up the pace through three sensational acts and ends in a grand three-way embrace with the tinkle of wedding bells as an accompaniment for the kisses. Romance, adventure and comedy, the three essentials of enjoyable drama, are skillfully combined.

Jack Katz, dancers who sing, or singers who dance. Fred Jarvis and Freddie Harrison, in a comedy frivolity they call "Lonesome," offer a very pleasing line of comedy chatter in a skit of clever situations.

Coral Bial and Dora Early, in a number of exclusive songs and eccentricities are as clever as they are lovely.

Judson Cole, assisted by the audience if you please, is a real laugh producer in a humorous interlude. May McKay and sisters are three very likable lassies, being, as the name implies, Scotch.

"The Spoilers." (At the Howard.)

Ford Sterling, one of the screen's best known comedians, has the role of "Slapjack" Simms in Jesse D. Hampton's new screen version of Rex Beach's "The Spoilers" which is now showing at the Howard to capacity houses.

His character portrayal of a man who is a master character work.

The prologue "In the Days of '49," featuring Carl V. Calloway, lyric tenor and the Volpi quartette singing strains from the "Mining Camp" and "Fencer."

The overture, "It Happened in Nordland," by Victor Herbert, by the Howard Wonder Orchestra, conducted by Enrico Jellie and Alex Keese, is a very good number and pleasing.

Snub Pollard in "It's a Gift," comedy.

"Dulcy." (At the Metropolitan.)

Being the "kid brother" of one of the film world's greatest and most beloved screen stars is one of the trials in the life of Johnny Harron, who plays the leading juvenile role in Constance Talmadge's delightful comedy, "Dulcy."

Johnny is always spoken of as the younger brother of Bobby Harron, who won immortal fame in "Hearts of the World," and whose untimely death in the flush of youth was greatly deplored in the film world.

In "Dulcy," the pictureization of the famous Broadway stage hit which Sidney Franklin directed for release by Joseph M. Schenck Productions through First National, he plays the responsible part of brother to the whimsical Connie Talmadge.

Conductor Risler has arranged several attractive musical novelties. The pictures of the Japanese disaster created an unusual amount of interest; Kingman, Fox and other companies.

"Six Days." (Coming to Metropolitan.)

Charles Brabin, who was engaged by Goldwyn to direct his Elinor Glyn picture, "Six Days," coming to the Metropolitan theater on October 8 for six days, began his motion picture career in 1908 as a director for the old Edison company. Since then he has directed for nearly every large concern in the industry, and has made some of the most notable photoplays of the past fifteen years.

Brabin, whose wife is Theda Bara, was born in Liverpool. His career on the speaking stage was almost entirely in England. His first motion picture was "The Raven," directed for Essanay in 1908. He has directed big productions for Vitaphone, Metro, Fox and other companies.

"Daughters of the Rich." (At the Rialto Theater.)

When B. P. Schulberg signed Ethel Shannon on a five-year contract to play featured roles in Al Lichtman Attractions, the picture did not rush out and buy an expensive car and a new home.

"Once before I became very extravagant after being given a leading role," relates Miss Shannon, who can be seen this week at the Rialto theater in "Daughters of the Rich."

B. N. HARRIS IS CHOSEN COCA-COLA SALES HEAD

Appointment of B. Neal Harris, well-known former Atlantan, as general sales manager for the Coca-Cola company was announced Wednesday at a meeting of division sales managers, held at the home office, by Harrison Jones, vice president in charge of marketing.

Mr. Harris' appointment is one of the first steps in a comprehensive program of expansion which is being worked out by the company. He was formerly general manager of the New York division for the Coca-Cola company.

"I feel particularly fortunate in taking this position at this particular time," said Mr. Harris, "due to the fact that the prospects for the Coca-Cola company are brighter at present than they have been at any time since I first came with the company in 1906."

I believe that this business, large as it is today, is only in its infancy, and that the next ten years will see a growth unequalled at any period in the company's past history."

Mr. Harris is a native of Atlanta. He is a son of the late H. R. Harris, and is a brother of Mrs. H. Clay Moore, of Atlanta. For six years he was connected with the Neal bank of this city, and served in almost every capacity from collector to head of the savings department.

Mr. Harris first came with the Coca-Cola company as a salesman in the Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico division in 1906. In 1920 he was appointed division sales manager of the southwest division, with headquarters at New Orleans, and later as manager of the New Orleans factory and office. In June, 1922, he became division sales manager of the New York division, and January, 1923, general manager of the New York division. His appointment as general sales manager of the Coca-Cola company became effective October 1. He will move to Atlanta within the next few weeks, where he will be permanently located.

SOCIAL AGENCIES TO HEAR ADDRESS ON STATE DEFECTS

"Fundamental Defects in Our State Government" will be the subject of an address by Hooper Alexander at the first fall meeting Friday of the State Council of Social Agencies. Luncheon will be served at the chamber of commerce at 12:30 o'clock. As consideration is being given to changes in state government, the social agencies have called on Mr. Alexander to outline what he considers a constructive program to remedy the situation. Mr. Alexander, who has studied the matter closely, is preparing a series of studies on state government for the League of Women Voters.

Other addresses at the meeting of the state council will include: "The Work of the New Service Men's Bureau," by Dr. J. G. C. Bloodworth, "The Cancer Commission Campaign," by Dr. J. L. Campbell, and "The Health Examination Campaign," by Dr. C. E. Waller.

ALUMNI SENATE NAMES RAMSPECK FRAT HEAD

Robert C. W. Ramspeck, solicitor of the city court of Decatur, was elected to head the Atlanta Alumni Senate of the Delta Theta Phi fraternity at a meeting Monday, it was announced by officers of the organization Wednesday. Other officers elected were: C. E. Cornwell, secretary.

Man and Daughter Hurlled From Buggy By Startled Mule

Valdosta, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—While crossing a bridge at Five Mile creek in Berrien county, a mule-drawn buggy containing a man and his daughter was hurled into the water. The man and daughter were thrown out of the buggy to the ground. The mule and buggy fell into the water. Neither Mr. Weaver nor his daughter was seriously injured.

POETS TO CONVENE Georgia Society To Meet During October.

Savannah, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—The Poetry Society of Georgia, with C. Seymour Thompson, president, and D. G. Bickers, secretary, will hold its annual meeting this month, the regular meeting being October 15, to be changed, probably to a later date in the month. This will be the first annual meeting since its organization and several state-wide prizes offered are to be awarded. New officers will be elected. The membership is limited and is now within a few of the limit provided.

BUILD "BULL RINGS" But They're for Soldiers To Practice Riding.

Savannah, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—The "bull rings" will soon be constructed in Park Extension in order that field artillerymen, the 118th national guard, may learn horse back work. More than ninety horses will be in the rings at one time, and as many or more soldiers will be practicing at night, electric lights will be installed over the park to make it as light as day.

LIVES UNDER TANK Stowaway Eludes Crew, Lands in U. S.

Savannah, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—The Eglantine, Lloyd Royal Belge vessel, from Antwerp, is unloading 7,000 tons of potash salts here, and brought with the potash five Belgian stowaways, all young men. Four were found a few days out, but the fifth was not discovered till the vessel ran into Tybee light. He hid under a water tank for twenty-one days, his companions slipping him food and water.

TO ATTEMPT TO PROVE 'MAN' BANDIT IS WOMAN

Chicago, October 3.—Expert witnesses will testify and X-ray photographs will be presented today in an attempt to convince the jury trying Fred Thompson, alias Frances Carick, on a charge of killing Richard C. Tesmer in a holdup, that the defendant is a woman, according to Thompson's attorney Frank McDowell.

"The state charges my client is a man who was masquerading as a woman, when the alleged crime took place. The defense will prove the defendant is a woman," Mr. McDowell said.

Thompson was identified yesterday by Mrs. Tesmer, who was with her husband, as the person dressed in woman's clothing who shot him.

Judge John R. Caverly ruled that Frank Carick, alleged husband of Thompson, was disqualified as a witness because the two had been married.

high at any price

Substitutes are generally more expensive in the end than genuine articles. Housewives have learned—they KNOW this is true where bakings are concerned.

Self rising flours are classed as substitutes for plain flour and good baking powder. The use of these special mixtures is very liable to result in false economy, failures and waste on bake day.

Remember there is a big difference, in many ways, between biscuits and other bakings made from these so-called self-rising flours and those made from good plain flour and a dependable leavener. Try the experiment—make a baking from each—convince yourself.

You will find the baking made from flour and baking powder far more attractive in appearance. It will raise higher—retain its full food value and taste better.

For best results, do not fail to use Calumet, the Economy Baking Powder, and a reliable brand of plain flour.

Just think of it—the sale of Calumet is 2½ times as much as that of any other brand. It contains only such ingredients as have been officially approved by the United States Food Authorities. It is pure and sure.

You save when you buy it—you save when you use it.

RICH'S GOLDEN HARVEST SALE

A Harvest Sale Absolutely Unique

A well-pleased Druid Hills matron said yesterday: "A store-wide Sale in most places means getting old things taken from stock—it means ANYTHING but the BRAND-NEW merchandise YOU are offering. I DON'T see how you can do it!" . . . Nor COULD we, except for the hearty co-operation of manufacturers who almost gave us merchandise.

"Your Silk Hosiery Sale Is the Wonder of the Trade"

Said a representative from a large silk hosiery manufacturer who journeyed to Atlanta to see how it could be done.

"You have accomplished something remarkable, sir!" he exclaimed.

"Over 12,000 pairs distributed the first sale day—why, it is almost unbelievable! I am quite positive there is no other store in America that has equaled such a sale! Really, I don't understand how you do it."

"It is little wonder that people all over the city and in many cities of the state, are talking about it."

Commander Freyer Returns From Peru To San Francisco

Marietta, Ga., October 3.—Commander Frank B. Freyer and family have landed in San Francisco from Peru, S. A., according to a telegram received by his mother, Mrs. Julia B. Freyer, of Marietta. Commander Freyer has headed the U. S. naval mission to Peru for three years, at the request of the Peruvian government to the United States to reconstruct the Peruvian navy. He was captain of the fleet there, and with Mrs. Freyer spent three years very delightfully in Lima. In appreciation of his services there, the government gave Freyer the title of rear admiral of the Peruvian navy.

Mrs. Freyer speaks Spanish fluently, and her many charms made her a social favorite. Just before leaving Peru the Freyers had their two children confirmed in the Catholic church. The president of Peru was godfather to young Franz, Jr., and presented that lucky small boy with an elegant gold watch.

Freyer is now commander of the "Procyon," the flagship of the fleet of the base forces on the west coast. He will visit his mother and his sister, Mrs. M. L. McNeel here before long.

Visitor and Brides- Elect Are Honored At Bridge-Tea

One of the loveliest social events of Wednesday was the bridge-tea given by Mrs. Thomas J. Walsh at the Piedmont Driving club, complimenting Miss Olive Caldwell, of New York, and Miss Maude Hurt Carlton, Miss Margaret Pratt and Miss Jennie Johnson, three charming brides-elect.

Dainty hand-made handkerchiefs were given for prizes and presented to the three guests of honor.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Ernest Woodruff, Mrs. George C. Walters and Mrs. Elizabeth Winship Bates.

Mrs. Walsh received her guests wearing a gown of black chinchilla satin trimmed in Barano point lace. Her hat was a wide-brimmed model of black velvet adorned with roses in Dresden shades.

Mrs. Bates wore a handsome gown of Alice blue charmeuse beaded in jet. A cloche hat of blue velvet, trimmed in ostrich, of the same shade, completed her costume.

At the conclusion of the game the guests were seated at a long table on the terrace for tea. The daintily appointed tea table had as a central decoration a mound of late summer flowers in the various pastel shades. Bowls of these same lovely flowers were placed at each end.

Invited to meet the honor guests were Misses Louise Inman, Emma Nixon, Sarah Orme, Margaret Morgan, Jennie Robinson, Margaret Nelson, Katherine Carlton, Elizabeth Kottz, Janet Evans, Henrietta Tupper, Katherine Powell, Queenelle Harold, of Americus; Telside Pratt, Holly Hart, Charlotte Wilkins, Martha Boykin, Emily Robinson, Anne Grant, Henrietta Davis, Marion Dean, Eliza-

Is Brilliant Social Event

Of outstanding social importance, uniting two of the south's most prominent families, was the marriage of Miss Mariana Turner Goldsmith and John Somerville Knox, which was solemnized Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Glenn, at 1120 Peachtree road.

A brilliant assemblage of relatives and friends witnessed the impressive ceremony, which was performed by Dr. Carey Breckenridge Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church.

Exquisite Decorations.
The handsome home presented a scene of exquisite beauty, the spacious reception rooms being decorated with beautiful Easter lilies arranged against a rich background of palms and ferns. The ceremony took place in the living room before an altar formed against the wide fireplace. Stately palms were effectively centered on either side and tall pedestal baskets filled with Easter lilies alternated with candelabra holding burning tapers. Suspended above was a hanging basket of lilies.

Wedding Attendants.
To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, softly rendered by an orchestra, the two small ribbon bearers, Miss Suzanne Knox, niece of the groom, and Miss Mary Meador Goldsmith, a cousin of the bride, descended the stairway and with the streams of ribbon formed an aisle across the wide hall into the living room. They were followed by the bridesmaids, who carried pink chiffon trains and held bouquets of pink roses. The bridesmaids were dressed in white, and the bridesmaids' dresses were trimmed with silver lace and dainty silk French flowers.

Beautiful Bride.
Entering on the arm of her brother, John Fitten Goldsmith, the bride was a picture of radiant beauty and charm in her wedding gown of Duchess satin. It was designed in sleeveless fashion, with a long waistline and a full skirt with panels on each side which were elaborately beaded with rhinestones and crystals. A handsome ornament of crystals and rhinestones was caught in the front of the skirt at the waistline. The long satin train was caught at the shoulder and fell in graceful folds. Her veil of tulle extended the length of the train and was caught at the hair with a coronet of real lace and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Margaret Louise Campbell, of Walton county, near Social Circle, Ga., and Harry Oliver Coleman, of Decatur, were quietly married on Saturday afternoon, September 30, at the home of Mrs. J. E. Wilson, on Moreland avenue, Rev. G. L. Barton officiating.

Only a few close friends were present. The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Berrien Campbell, of Walton county, and is a young woman of pleasing personality. She is a graduate of Besseville college at Forsyth.

Mr. Coleman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Coleman, of Nashville, Tenn., and a grandson of Mr.

Hundreds of Atlantans Will Take Part in "Kirmess" Nov. 22, 1924

Plans are under way for the presentation of the "Kirmess," an elaborate operetta and dance fantasy, which will be given at the city auditorium November 22-23-24 for the benefit of the Atlanta Woman's club banquet hall fund.

Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, second vice president of the club and chairman of the banquet hall fund, is organizing the cast which will include hundreds of the most beautiful and talented members of Atlanta society.

E. E. Trader, of New York will direct the performance. Mr. Trader has recently returned from Asheville where a brilliant production of "Kirmess" was presented by the North Carolina Federation of Women's clubs. He is a director of note and will handle all details connected with casting, costuming, rehearsing and scenery.

Forming an important part in the production will be the music which will be under the direction of Mrs. Chalmers, former music chairman for the Atlanta Woman's club and prominently identified with musical life in Atlanta. The many solo parts and ensemble numbers will be sung by the leading musicians of the city who will be selected by Mrs. Chalmers.

There will be a Russian ballet, a Brazilian tango and a number of fascinating scenes, including "A Night in Japan." There will be a parade of wooden soldiers, and a baroque dance, an Italian Pantomime, a swing dance and many others.

Participating in the dances and in the ensemble numbers will be members of the Junior League, talented girls from Washington Seminary, the Girls' High school, Woodberry School for Girls and pupils of a number of dance studios.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker Will Give Dinner For Visitors
Mr. and Mrs. George Walker will entertain at dinner Sunday evening at the Georgian Terrace in compliment to Dr. J. C. Davis, of Washington, D. C. and Senator Ralph Metcalf, Tacoma, Wash., who will arrive in Atlanta the latter part of the week to spend several days.

Gilbert-Williams Nuptials Performed at Emory Chapel

Characterized by simplicity and beauty, the marriage of Miss Otto Gilbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gilbert, and Charles Frederick Williams, of Ford, Va., was an interesting event of Wednesday evening, taking place at 6 o'clock at the theological chapel at Emory university.

Rev. C. H. Williams, father of the groom, of Ford, Va., performed the ceremony which was witnessed by an audience of relatives and friends.

Lovely Decorations.
The chapel was decorated with palms and ferns and pedestals filled with white chrysanthemums. White burning tapers in cathedral candelabra cast a soft glow over the scene.

Before the ceremony John Knox sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied by an orchestra. Lohengrin's wedding march was played as the wedding party entered and changed to Mendelssohn's at the completion of the ceremony.

Wedding Party.
Entering first were the bridesmaids, Miss Linda Roberts and Miss Emma Proctor, of College Park. They were dressed alike in gowns of orchid satin, gracefully draped and beaded with crystals and pearls. They wore silver handbags, and their flowers were corsage bouquets of Ophelia roses and swainsons.

Miss Mary Gilbert, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She was dressed in a becoming model of Nile green satin draped from the waist line, and trimmed with crystal.

quet of bride's roses studded with lilies of the valley and orchids.

Wedding Reception.
A beautiful reception and buffet supper was held following the ceremony. Placed on a small table in the dining room was the bride's cake, which was in three tiers and daintily embossed in pink and white designs suggestive of a wedding.

Receiving with Mrs. Glenn were Mrs. Paul Goldsmith, the bride's mother; Mrs. Fitzhugh Knox, mother of the groom; and Mrs. Lee Barber, of Washington, D. C., the groom's sister.

Another sister of the groom, Miss Evelyn Knox, kept the bride's book. Punch was served from silver bowls placed in the saloon and embedded in flowers and smilax. Miss Lena Knox, a sister of the groom, and Miss Margaret Rogers, presided at the punch bowls.

Lovely Costumes.
Mrs. Goldsmith was gowned in black lace built over chamoisee. She wore a corsage bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Glenn was handsomely gowned in orchid chiffon, elaborately beaded. Her corsage bouquet was of pink roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Knox's becoming costume was of orchid chiffon beaded in crystals and pearls and worn with a corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids.

Mrs. Barber was gowned in red panne velvet trimmed with white fur. Miss Lena Knox wore an elaborate beads. The girl was of silver, and she wore a silver handbag and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses studded with swansons.

The ushers were William R. Gilbert and Arva Floyd.

Charming Bride.
The bride entered with her father, W. J. Gilbert, who gave her in marriage, and was joined at the altar by the groom and his best man, A. D. Clarke, of Salisbury, Md. She was charming in her traveling costume, a Parisian model of navy blue crepe-back satin, designed in straight lines. The skirt was caught at the side with a handsome Egyptian ornament. She wore a large dark blue velvet hat trimmed with burnt goose feathers.

Her flowers were the bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams left following the ceremony for Washington, New York and other eastern points.

Mrs. Gilbert, the bride's mother, was gowned in black satin and lace and wore a corsage bouquet of red roses.

The bride is a graduate of the Girls' High school and of Agnes Scott college, from which institution she received an A. B. degree.

She was the assistant in physics at Agnes Scott and has been prominently identified with the cultural life of Atlanta.

Mr. Williams graduated from Randolph Macon and later received the degree of Doctor of Divinity at Emory university.

Nile green model trimmed with bronze beads.

Miss Margaret Rogers' beautiful gown was of red broadcloth and rhinestone ornaments.

Miss Evelyn Knox wore electric blue crepe de chine beaded in pearls.

Wedding Trip.
Mr. and Mrs. Knox left during the evening for a wedding trip to New York, Washington and other eastern cities. Upon their return they will make their home with the bride's mother on Peachtree road.

Mrs. Knox traveled in a navy blue charmeuse gown beaded with gold and brown braid and worn with a small black duvetyne hat trimmed with burnt goose feathers.

The bride possesses a charming personality which has endeared her to a host of friends. While she has made a formal debut, she has been one of the most popular and beloved belles of Atlanta society. She graduated from the Girls' High school and later attended Goucher woman's college, in Baltimore. Returning to Atlanta, she studied at Oglethorpe university. Although not having attended Washington seminary, she was a member of the Phi Pi society and a member of the Alpha Phi at Goucher.

Her mother is one of the most beloved women in Atlanta, and her father, the late Paul Goldsmith, was one of Atlanta's constructive citizens. Her brothers are John Fitten Goldsmith, J. W. Goldsmith III, and Paul Goldsmith.

Miss Goldsmith's grandparents on both sides have been among Atlanta's leaders in social prominence and constructive ability. She bears the name of her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. John H. Fitten, formerly Miss Miriam Turner, who was one of the most beloved women ever in Atlanta.

Mrs. Fitten was a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. He is the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Knox, his brothers being Inman Knox, Olmstead Knox, Fitzhugh Knox, Jr., and Britton Knox. His sisters are: Mrs. Lee Barber, of Norfolk, Va.; Miss Evelyn Knox, Miss Lena Knox and Miss Suzanne Knox.

His mother is one of the beloved Atlanta women, formerly Miss Lena Barber, and his father is a member of families prominent in Fredericksburg and Warrenton, Va.

Noted Author Will Address Atlanta Woman's Club Monday

Mrs. Jacques Futelle, noted writer and member of the National Authors' league, who will address the Atlanta Woman's club on censorship at the regular meeting Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Jacques Futelle, well-known writer, will be the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Atlanta Woman's club Monday afternoon, October 8. Mrs. Futelle will talk on censorship, a subject of which she has made a deep study for a number of years, and one which the Authors' league, of which she is a member, is opposing. Her discussion of this subject will include not only censorship of motion pictures, but censorship of books and plays as well.

Mrs. Futelle is well known as the author of "Lieut. What's-His-Name," "The Black Rose," "The Secretary of Frivolous Affairs," and other successes. She is visiting in Atlanta as the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Peel, and will return to New York November 1.

usually fine lot of youngsters, too; the standard is much higher than formerly. The mothers from the country have responded wonderfully to the opportunity, and babies are coming in daily from Camp Ground, Macand, Juncos, and Flint Hill, as well as large delegations from Powder Springs, Smyrna, Austell, Acworth and Roswell. Two young mothers even motored in from Paulding county, and were greatly disappointed to find that they could not register their fine specimens of babyhood.

The first pair of twins was registered this morning. These were Ruth Joan and Ruby Jean Clayton, from Camp Ground, a lovely little couple weighed 4 pounds each at birth, and now tip the scales at 28. Among the many proud mothers present Wednesday were noted Mrs. T. W. Read, Jr., with her ten months old son, weighing 25 pounds; and Mrs. Jarrell Black, Jr., with her young son, weighing 20 pounds at nine months. Two fine examples of what Marietta is exhibiting.

Miss Verna Thornhill, of Washington, was the speaker on the program for Wednesday, and her illuminating talk on mouth hygiene was heard with great interest. Miss Thornhill gave a demonstration of proper mouth toilet, and stressed the fact that the mouth is the main gateway to the body, and must be kept clean to preserve health. She told how oral hygiene prevents communicable diseases, and how keeping toxin poisons out of the system promotes growth and improves mentality. Miss Thornhill also showed the mothers how to teach children these things attractively, by putting them in story form.

Other features of the program were two lullabies, sweetly sung by Mrs. Jim Collins, and two folk dances given by Miss Creswell Merrisette, a pupil of Mrs. Regina Rambo Benson.

Babies Are Kings Of Cobb County
For Entire Week

Marietta, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—One of the attractive posters made by some small school child of Marietta for Better Babies Week, shows a lovely baby sitting on top of the big round world, spinning in space. The babe has a smile of joy and pride on its face, and with dimpled arms outstretched, is saying, "The World is mine." Anyone coming to Marietta this week would feel that its confidence is not misplaced. Undoubtedly "Baby is King." Mothers from all over the county are taking advantage of this wonderful opportunity, and the Y. W. C. A. rooms are filled all day and every evening with mothers and good better and best babies.

Mrs. J. D. Anderson, chairman of central utility, says that more than 100 babies had registered up to Wednesday noon, and more are coming in every hour. The doctors and nurses in attendance say these are an unusual lot.

Miss Winslow Is Feted Bride-Elect At Party Series

Mrs. Charles Starling was hostess at a bridge-tee Wednesday afternoon at her home on Adams street in honor of Miss Beatrice Winslow, a lovely bride-elect.

A graceful arrangement of garden flowers, including roses, dahlias, cosmos, buddleia and ageratum throughout the rooms where the guests were received, made beautiful decorations. The table in the dining room held a tall silver vase filled with the same lovely flowers.

The honor guest was presented with silk hose. The top score prize was a piece of pottery and the consolation was a hand-embroidered handkerchief.

The invited guests were Miss Winslow, Mrs. T. E. Winslow, Mrs. George Freeman, Mrs. Arthur Laird, Miss Dorothy Matthews, Miss Hazel Lamar, Miss Ethel Frichard, Miss Jane Jackson, Mrs. Alfred Branch, Jr., Mrs. Henry Morgan, Mrs. Hugh Burgess, Mrs. Roy Baker, Mrs. Ted Passalunghi, Mrs. Horace Brewer, Miss Estelle Gardner, Miss Uldric Green, Miss Maud Stanley, Miss Jennie Edmondson, Mrs. James Respass, Mrs. W. J. Hayes, Mrs. H. G. Laney and Miss Marie Pearce.

Miss Evelyn Starling assisted in entertaining.

Another pretty compliment to Miss Winslow was the luncheon at which Miss Hazel Lamar was hostess on Wednesday when she entertained at the East Lake Country club.

The luncheon table held for the central decoration a basket of lavender asters and cosmos. The place cards were daintily hand-painted brides and the hon-bon cups were heart-shaped and filled with lavender mints.

Miss Winslow was gowned in rosewood crepe beaded and trimmed with fox. Her hat was of brown and gold velvet and her corsage bouquet was of sweethearts roses.

Emory Woman's Club Makes New Plans At Fall Meeting

The regular meeting of the Emory Woman's club held Tuesday, October 2, at the home of Mrs. Goodrich White was marked by the happy reuniting of the wives of the university faculty who have been away during the summer and by the attendance of many new members. "Vacation Echoes" was the keynote of the meeting. Interesting as well as varied were the accounts of vacation experiences.

It was announced by Mrs. Sam Guy, presiding in the absence of Mr. W. S. Nelms who is out of the city, that the drinking fountain bought and installed by the Woman's club is rapidly proving its worth. The students are deeply appreciative of its utility and in time the spot where the fountain stands will be one of beauty.

Mrs. Harvey W. Cox, wife of the president of the university, has invited the faculty and their wives for tea on Friday from 4 to 6 o'clock to meet the new members of the faculty and their wives. This was announced at the meeting and Mrs. Cox extended a cordial invitation to all to attend.

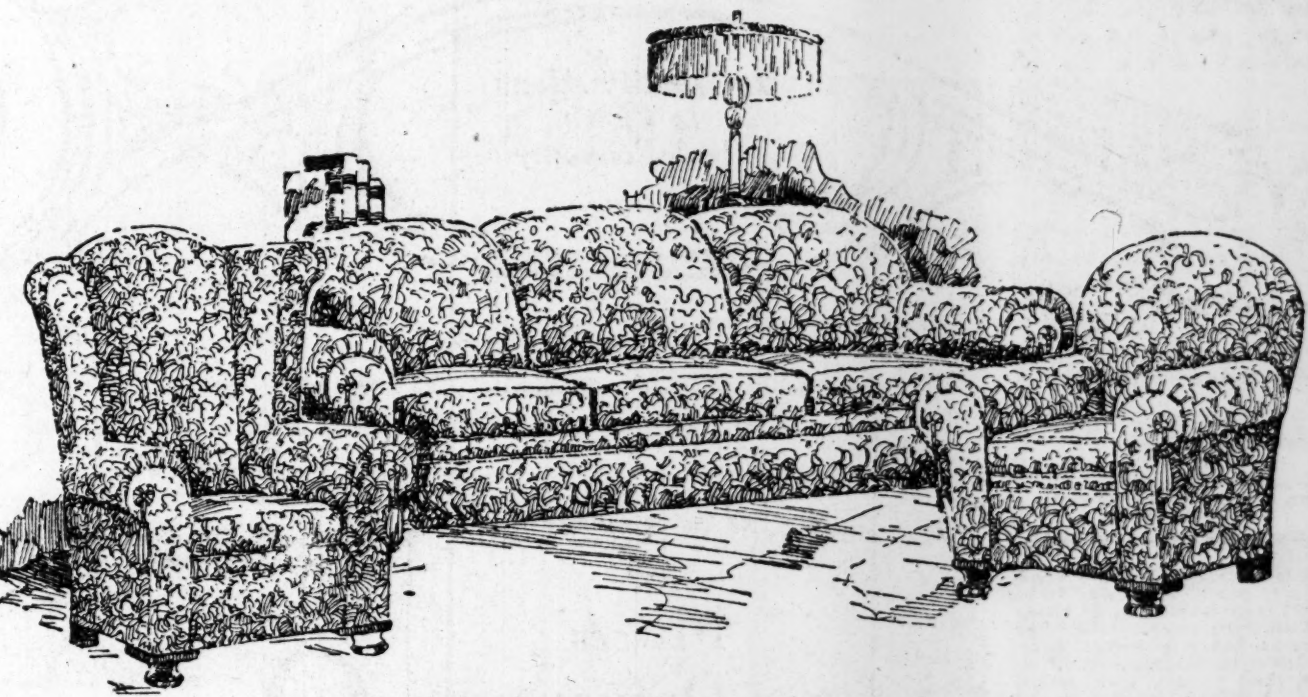

The members of the club endorsed Mrs. Alonzo Richardson as state director of the National Federation of Women's clubs.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Harvey Cox on October 23, and there is to be a joint meeting of the woman's club and the faculty club at the home of Bishop Warren Candler the latter part of the month.

Mrs. Goodrich White, Mrs. W. B. Baker and Mrs. H. C. Howard were charming as hostesses. Delicious refreshments were served.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Harvey Cox on October 23, and there is to be a joint meeting of the woman's club and the faculty club at the home of Bishop Warren Candler the latter part of the month.

MAKING GOOD

We had the nerve to open an exclusive optical store in 1905. We had the ability to "make good." Nobody can make claims; "delivering the goods" is really what leads to success. We claim to have one of the soundest and most reliable exclusive optical stores in the states. We claim we use every endeavor to treat our patients courteously and fairly. We claim that the welfare of our patients is our first consideration—but the claim is only the smaller half. As to the larger half, ask any of the better oculists, physicians, or any of our patients. We are willing to risk our reputation on their judgment—they will tell you we have made good as an exclusive optical store. No side lines.

STARVED HEARTS

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

CHAPTER IV.
The Will of the Tyrant.
Luncheon in the Lane household was an awkward meal. At dinner, under the influence of savory food and a little wine, Lane unbent, and it was not ready promptly on the hour—was a ceremony at which the partial penalty. The breakfast coffee—and rolls was not a public function. Barbara was not required to provide, and Lane ate hastily with one eye on the financial pages of the morning newspaper. But luncheon, to which he returned punctually each day at 1 o'clock—and was to the café if it were not ready promptly on the hour—was a ceremony at which the presence of every member of the family was required. Madelon, on her first attendance at this midday function, found herself wondering why Lane demanded her presence. He ate in silence, cold, taciturn, remote. Barbara scarcely spoke except to issue occasional, low-voiced orders to Masters. A wave of utter depression swept over the girl. When, at a nod from Barbara, she was permitted to withdraw from the table, Lane looked up abruptly. "Come into the library in half an hour. I want to talk to you."

Swift color flew to Madelon's cheeks. Surely that must mean that Duane Farley had carried out his determination to ask for her hand!

She wandered into the music room to while away the intervening thirty minutes and was rambling through McDowell when Barbara stopped in the doorway. "When you have finished your talk with your uncle, will you come to my sitting room, Madelon? Ann Ordway, an old and very dear friend of the family, is dropping in to see you."

Barbara's eyes were very kind. There was a gleam in the gaze she bent on the younger girl. She seemed about to say more, but changed her mind and turned away. Madelon heard the soft trailing whisper of her chiffon tea-gown across the parquetry floor. It sounded like a sigh.

Stephen Lane was sitting by the table, drumming absently on its inlaid surface, when Madelon entered the library on the stroke of the appointed hour.

He didn't ask her to be seated and he wasted no time in coming to the point.

"That young puppy, Farley, had the impertinence to ask my permission to marry you when he called this morning."

Madelon caught her breath. Her eyes shone.

"I sent him about his business, of course."

She gasped. "Oh, Uncle Stephen—why?"

"I called you here," he went on grimly, "to tell you that this must be one of such nonsense. You are not to see young Farley again, understand me?"

If he calls, Madelon has orders to turn him away. "If I learn of your meeting him elsewhere," he finished with a gesture that was significant.

Madelon's eyes flashed indignantly. "You are unfair, Uncle Stephen. What right?"

He rose. He seemed to tower over her. "I am your guardian and your only living relative. My will is law and no one dares to question it. See that you obey me to the letter."

"But Uncle Stephen—"

"Don't attempt to argue with me. I know better than you. Your young architect is aware that you will be a rich woman some day, if I have no other heirs. You will find that his ardor can be measured by dollars and cents. . . . You may go now, and see to it that there is no more of this nonsense. I shall not be so patient next time."

Madelon went out quietly enough, but she was seething inwardly with indignation. Rebellious thoughts crowded through her consciousness. How dared he order her about like a slave, even if he was her guardian? How dared he accuse Farley of mercenary motives? Wild plans of eluding his watchfulness leaped into her brain.

But, as she sat in her room staring straight before her, the old lesson of obedience instilled by the patient nurse in the quiet convent so far removed from worldly strife, came back to her. . . . Lane had taken her in, a penniless orphan. The food she ate, the gown that encased her slim loveliness, were alike paid for with his money. He had the moral right to demand obedience. She could only wait and hope for a change of heart.

She cried a little when she had reached her decision to give Duane Farley up. He was her first love and the glamour of young romance hovered about him. His devotion was immensely flattering to a school girl heart, as yet untouched by real love. Barbara tapped on her door and called to her softly.

"Ann is here, Madelon. Will you come?"

A flushed and tear-stained Madelon flung open the door, cast herself impulsively into Barbara's arms, hid her face in the scented laces on Barbara's breast.

"He's sent Duane away," she wailed. "He made me promise never to see him again."

Barbara's eyes were soft with pity. "Will you see Duane for me, if he comes—and I know he will? Tell him I'll see him."

Barbara soothed her gently. "I will see that he gets your message," she promised, ignorant of the fate to which that promise bound her.

Jane Hedden
Hat Pattern

Windows are cut in the brim of this quaint mushroom. Narrow ribbons form a lattice over which trail sprays of hand-made flowers. The effect is of a simple but sophisticated hat charming of line and design. The latticed windows throw light on the face in a flattering manner and keep the hat from throwing heavy shadows. The principle involved is much the same as that of correctly lighting a painting. Light may be thrown on a picture so as to enhance or ruin it. The same thing happens with shading a face. The girl who cannot ordinarily wear a brim hat will find this one both comfortable and becoming.

Material Required.
One soft colored crown, 4 yards

OGLETHORPE IS GIVEN
TWO HISTORIC MAPS

Oglethorpe university was enriched by the addition to its library of two ancient maps of unusual interest, donated to the university by S. Guyt McLendon, secretary of the Georgia Historical Society, according to Miss Alma Hill Jamieson, librarian.

One map is a rather crude effort to show details of all that part of the United States and Canada east of the Mississippi river. It was made in 1702 by a Frenchman, and the printing is in the French language. The other was made by a geographer named Herman Moll upon the orders of Queen Anne of England.

This latter map is unusually interesting in that it seems to indicate that Georgia was named after George I, instead of George II, as is generally believed.

The order to make the map, which was to include all the colonies comprising the then known America, was given by Queen Anne in 1711. She died in 1714 and was succeeded by George I. The signature and legend of the map show that it was completed in 1715, during the reign of George I. That portion of the territory lying between the Savannah and Altamaha rivers is designated "Georgia." It would therefore appear that it must have been named after the reigning monarch, George I, and not after George II, as most histories state.

R. De S. Horne, Noted Author,
Addresses Writers' Club

R. De S. Horne, of New York, was the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Atlanta Writers' club Wednesday afternoon at the City club. Mr. Horne has just returned from a year's stay in Australia, and in addition to discussing the short story from many angles, gave an interesting account of his travels.

Here Comes the Debutante,
HER COST IS HIGH, BUT WE MUST HAVE HER
Fascinating Young Creature!

By Bessie Shaw Stafford.

Here comes the debutante, swagger stick, bobbed hair, earrings and all. She is a very fascinating creature to all of us, and on these crisp autumn days she is rushing about deciding upon the lovely clothes she will wear for her conquests.

An exceedingly clever Atlanta woman has declared that if one has a debutante daughter, one has nothing to be proud of.

Fashions in "debutantism" if one may so coin a word—change as in everything else—also the cost changes. Whereas, it used to be a matter of more or less simplicity to introduce a daughter to the fashionable world, it is now a matter far from simple to present the debutante of 1923.

In the first place, the debutante herself is no longer the demure, unsophisticated creature she used to be, of whom it was said she was known by her timidity and her snow-white gloves. If one can find a debutante of 1923, she would be as distinctly out of the picture that she would create a riot at her own party, for "tis the "peppy" and vivacious girl, so to speak, who makes the hit socially in these hurrying, hurrying days.

As to her clothes. A decade ago was content with no more than three ball gowns. Nowadays, the life of one ball gown is the length of one evening's dance. These filmy beautiful things are built of perishable material, cobweb fine, and entrancingly lovely.

Beads and ornaments, costing a small fortune in themselves, form the decorative value, and are so lightly fastened with fragile thread that they are lost with almost each twirl of the dancer's twinkling feet.

Metal brooches, their luster and brilliance outrivalling the sunbeam and even the moonbeams, must be kept carefully wrapped in black cloth to prevent their beauty from becoming forever dimmed and tarnished. These brooches, costing anywhere from $15 to $50 a yard, amount to no small sum, even though it takes only a little yardage to fashion them into a modern frock.

And as for chiffon, enough of it is sold for one debutante, not only for her top clothes, but for underthings to clothe a dozen or more ordinary mortals. At a dollar or two a yard, this, too, is an expensive item.

Her Bobbed Hair.

Even bobbed hair does not spare expense for this interesting personage. Don't allow yourself to dream for a moment that this fashion places a ban on a visit to the hair-dresser. Our debutante has to run up for a "clip" and to have the permanent wave "set," and this costs a pretty penny, or a pretty many pennies, to be more accurate.

Bobbed hair requires handsome, for evening wear, for nearly everybody wears these becoming accessories. They range in price from $2 to $100.

tributed to "Sea Stories," the "American" magazines, "Colliers Weekly" and a number of other literary magazines. A story by him appeared in O'Henry's collection of prize stories. Dr. James O. Routh, head of the English department of Oglethorpe university, had charge of the program for the afternoon, and led the open forum which followed Mr. Horne's talk.

Dudley Cowles, president of the club, discussed the rich atmosphere for short story writing found in the south.

them. No other stocking looks attractive any more.

To Be Correctly Shod.

To be correctly shod, a debutante could make use of a different pair of shoes for practically every hour in the day, the cost ranging from ten to twenty dollars per pair. Add to the evening slippers the costly little rhinestone buckles to ring the winter and the coat mounts on and up.

The 1923 debutante must have a supply of sports and semi-sports clothes, too, which were entirely unknown to her predecessor of a decade ago. Gowns are no longer versatile affairs, convertible into wear destined for any and every occasion. To be really smart girls must look trim and boyish in the mornings, whether she decides to wear a sport costume or don the trip tailored gown costing from seventy-five to one hundred dollars.

These clothes are suitable for a week-end country trip, and it is always economy to make this purchase from the very best the shopping district offers.

One can horseback or golf in knickerbockers and also play tennis in this favorite attire, but one cannot leave an automobile, to be clad, and go shopping, unless a long and expensive coat, to make up for the skirts she left at home, tops the outfit. From fifty to one hundred dollars for this smart-looking coat is a mere nothing in the mounting cost.

The white sport blouses, indescribably lovely sweaters or coats, a becomingly chosen bowler and high boots, go hand in hand with the knickerbockers. The cost of these accessories means another small fortune, but where is the debutante who will be without them this winter.

As for hats. The prices, the sky is the limit. To be irresistibly attracted "Miss Debutante" must have many creations chosen for the framing of her lovely face. I prefer not to quote prices or name the number of hats she should wear, for hats are as alluring to me as if I had my way, I would buy one every day.

When the windy wind is keen and the thermometer is dropping every moment, her graceful figure must be wrapped in a chic coat, be it fur, wool or velvet, collared and cuffed in some contrasting warm, soft fur, all preserving the straight silhouette and costing up in the hundreds. An individual style at present for an evening coat is the one of ermine. Velvet is also chosen for its becomingness in evening wraps, and is fur-trimmed, while those of metal brocade ones are glitteringly beautiful and all cost a king's ransom.

The ensemble costume or the three-piece suit may please the fancy of this little lady, and if it does, the slim silhouette gown and youthfully slender coat collared and banded with viatic squirrel or fox fur will cost around two hundred. She must also possess a costume overblouse of crepe de Chine, richly embroidered in Chinese motifs, and always in readiness for the tailored skirt. It looks most attractive when the coat is removed, and these blouses range from fifteen to thirty dollars.

When the dinner gown is selected let it be of chiffon velvet. Models of this material will bid for a place in the trousseau. The debutante can look like a Cossack maid in the afternoon gowns, inspired by the Russian influence. The overblouse can be of metal gold lace with a massive fur border and the sleeves bordered in fur, the skirt of velvet, and purchased at very little less than $150. After her daytime pleasures are done with, the debutante slips into her negligee of crepe de Chine or Georgette crepe, and enjoys that blissful time when one sheds outer clothes and relaxes.

These pretty affairs can be made at home to great advantage, and cost really as expensive or cheap as one cares to make them. And so it goes. Like the brook, running on forever.

BY GERALDINE BONNER.

There Sir Bruce himself, with his man, Timothy Bassett, stood at the portals and welcomed me in the heartiest manner. He had made ample preparations for my meal and walked up and down his study, where it had been served, while I enjoyed it, but to my amazement, gave no indication whatever of his reason for putting this long trip upon me.

Guessing that he designed to postpone his desires until the next morning, I prepared to go to bed. Then I noted my newspapers.

"The strike is broken," I said.

"The railway men go back to work," he said.

"He was furious; I had not seen him so angry so long," he said.

He permitted himself the utmost indignation and heaped upon the head of the Hon. Erskine Owen a torrent of scornful vituperation and reproach. I stood amazed before such bitter invective, for never had I seen Sir Bruce so swept by strong feeling, or so indifferent to conceal his emotions.

"The accused wretch has filled his cup of iniquity," he cried. "It runs over, to poison the fountain of honor and weaken the foundations of our liberties. This is a nail—another nail in the coffin of the constitution. He has abused his trust, defied authority and broken his oaths to his country and his king!"

For a long time he raved thus, and then came back to himself and his duties as a host. He blushed himself for allowing these incidents to intrude at such an hour, and then conducted me to my room.

"Sleep in peace," he said; "and sleep well, for after tomorrow, your soul may not know peace for many days."

Not until eleven did I awake, and I guessed that it had been his wish I should begin the day in possession of all my wits and strength. But no crowd awaited me, for after breakfasting alone, according to former custom, I waited in vain for Sir Bruce to appear.

Bassett informed me that his master might descend at any moment. But at luncheon my host was still invisible.

A suggestion that he should be summoned was rejected by his man.

"Against all rules," he said, "I forbade to call him at any time."

CHAPTER XVIII.
The End of the Prime Minister.

My time possessed value; and it seemed that Sir Bruce had not forgotten, both me and the fact that I must now be waiting his pleasure, to the detriment of my own affairs. Such discourtesy was so unlike my friend and delay so opposed to the urgent quality of the message which had brought me to Devonshire, that I could think of no distraction.

But Timothy Bassett and his wife did not share my tribulation.

Their confidence restored my own. Grimwood until the following morning concerning the end of the strike.

We were quickly at our destination and, turning into a newspaper shop, I was staggered by the sight of the very heart within that hour, for now—the time being about half past three o'clock—along came through the doorway the Hon. Erskine Owen was dead.

I recollect the laconic wording of the tape.

"Owen murdered by the unknown. Wound in back—no evidence of how delivered."

Deep emotions mastered me at this statement, and I remember that my first instinct was to return straightaway to London in my car and not go back to Grimwood.

For a time my excited intelligence associated Sir Bruce directly with the assassination and refused even to weigh the practical impossibility of such a thing. Conviction above logic urged me away from the old man and his country home.

I felt positive that he could not be there; and that, even if I desired to see him, he would not be found at Grimwood; but with a calmer mind I argued against this panic determination and resolved to return instantly.

For it appeared to me that my own honor must now, more than ever, depend upon so doing. It was now five o'clock, and remembering that the prime minister had perished about half-past two, it appeared obvious that my host could have had no direct hand in an event still barely two and a half hours old. Fortified by this thought, I entered the house, rang for Bassett.

"Shall you call Sir Bruce to dinner?" I asked.

"Certainly not, sir. He's never to be disturbed."

At eight o'clock Bassett struck the dinner gong, but Sir Bruce did not appear.

The old boy carried the soup to the service table and attended quietly till I should take my seat. I strode up and down the dining room, irresolute and perturbed.

Suddenly a desire took me to gaze at the exterior of the place and I went to the French window and flung it open.

"I shouldn't go out, sir, if I was you," he said, and for once I detected a quickening of his slow speech.

"Stop where you are," I said, "and mind your own business. I am going to walk on the terrace, and when I want my dinner, I'll take it."

So saying I left them and passed into the darkness of the night.

The night was still heavy with an earth-born fog, but the mist was disposed irregularly and I could see the stars shining over my head. I padded the terrace half a dozen times and then walked out upon the garden.

In a moment, I became conscious of some slow and silent movement above my head and saw a patch of darkness blot the stars. My eyes soon accustomed to the darkness, made out a gigantic flying animal that wheeled once, then turned and, after remaining stationary with outspread pinions, slowly descended upon the roof of the manor.

It settled as gently as an owl upon the battlemented summit, then furled its wings and turned round with its long neck stretched forward over the terrace beneath. The movements were automatic, and just as any bird would have lowered when alighting in this position.

No. 87—"The King."

The thing perched immediately above Sir Bruce's window, and I could see its bat-like head, its ears laid back and the glow-worm light in eyes that seemed out of proportion large to its flat, reptilian head. They were like saucers of dim fire. To see the creature was terrible enough, and I felt my heart beating furiously; but how a thing far worse befell, for I in my turn was seen.

"The Bat" perceived me standing and staring upon it from below; its neck was lowered over the parapet; I felt as though a ray had struck me from its eyes. I perceived the sudden increase of their light. Then the thing opened its wings again and slid noiselessly down, touching ground some fifteen yards distant, then closed its wings and hopped towards me. As in a lightning I fastened to the railings, all my faculties clear, conscious that a dreadful death must now be the matter of moments only.

I struggled to my danger and summon aid, but no sound came; then I perceived a man's figure running swiftly from the corner of the house and felt a painful regret that he had come too late.

At the same moment something seemed to crack in my heart and I stood beside me, but in strange attire. He was clad in tight-fitting black from head to heel and his head appeared to be enveloped in a heavy black cowl with earpieces. Indeed only his eyes, nose and mouth were visible. I gazed wildly about me for the monster; but it had vanished.

"Bassett will give you an arm," my host went on. "I will join you shortly."

Then he spoke strangely to his old servant.

"Be ready to leave—all of you—in three hours' time, Timothy. Convey yourselves and your goods to the empty lodge. And have no fear for the future. All of you are amply provided for."

He disappeared before I had finished dining and himself partook of a little food. He still wore the singular garments, but had removed his cowl. He was very unlike my friend and delay so opposed to the urgent quality of the message which had brought me to Devonshire, that I could think of no distraction.

87 Noble had found. That No. 87 possessed the ubiquitous powers of my element I cannot suppose. No. 87 is the King of Elements—whether it is this world or any other.

"An extraordinary chance—little likely to happen again—placed it within my reach. I perceived that the supply was enormous and after sustained experiments, I found myself able to secure the energy at will and in quantity far in excess of any private requirement."

"I am the Unknown." The events of the last year are my work and mine only. When I left the India Service and retired, I came to England armed with my secret. We were then immersed in the Great War, and I decided to enter myself into the arena and win the war for the Allies. I was actually making my arrangements when severe indisposition overtook me. For a year, as you will remember, I was a very sick man, and during the year the war was won. I considered the importance of liberating my discovery, as a healing rather than a destructive force, but convinced myself that the danger far exceeded the promise of any salvation I could yet bring. Passions still swept every heart, and well I knew that neither the defeated nor victorious nations might yet be trusted with No. 87.

"Naturally no thought of self-advancement darkened my deliberations; otherwise I had certainly proclaimed the find and won the earth fame that must have resulted to me from such an achievement. But I had long lost any personal ambition in the matter and was only concerned with an agonizing desire to help mankind, and an equally terrible conviction that it was still impossible to do so."

CHAPTER XX.

"I found myself, then, on the horns

"The terms of the great peace struck me dumb with dismay, and though my secret tortured me, I kept it from mankind—at a cost only I can tell."

"That fearful strain wore me down; it deteriorated my intellect; it found the faulty ingredient within my own nature and finally drove me into the actions I deplore to relate."

"I am a pessimist," he continued, "and we will consider that for a moment. What is it, Granger, for a pessimist? Pessimism is a mental attitude and indeed, the only logical standpoint of mind, given certain postulates. When discontent with things as they are, takes the form of pessimism, it is indeed a 'divine discontent,' if it embodies the desire to lift mankind upward. Such pessimism is justified."

CHAPTER XX.

"I found myself, then, on the horns of an intolerable dilemma. I proved that I had discovered a panacea for much earthly suffering, but I also convinced myself that, since this discovery was potent for evil as well as good, to proclaim it and give it over to man, in his present temper, would endanger the very foundations of society. There was none on earth that I could trust."

"And at this stage my thoughts turned in upon myself, and out of my own character—out of my convictions, even out of my opinions and self-delusion that I was a wise, tolerant and temperate man, there arose the accursed temptation personally to experiment with my new-found energy."

"I resisted the thought, yet could not put it wholly behind me. You will perceive the terrific inducement to right some of the wrongs now crying to heaven; you will remember that I am a man who feels very deeply, that I have a wrong, as I see them. So there came a time when I determined to take on my own shoulders the garment of my own achievement and employ it—on my own responsibility—for the welfare of the world."

"It was the garment of a giant, ill-fitted to a dwarf's shoulders, my friend. You may carry the thrills, as Plato says, without being possessed by the god."

"Yet of such fond spirits was I, in my ignorant belief, that because I had discovered the cathartic hurricane, I was also endowed to employ it. There is no man living on this earth endowed to employ it; and no man shall do so."

He rose and walked up and down the room for the space of five minutes, and I said nothing meanwhile, but waited for him to continue. He returned to the fire and presently resumed.

"I have used you ill, Granger; but you will forgive me. I have employed you as an unconscious agent to spread untruth and to create false impressions. I have suggested to you that I was not out of harmony with the preposterous ideas that a living animal, or living animals, beyond human experience were involved in the extraordinary things that happened."

"There was, of course, no shadow grain of truth in any such suggestion. I and I alone am responsible for all that has occurred. I had no agent—human, or superhuman. There is no 'Bat,' but the time has now come when you shall understand."

CALL GOVERNORS TO MEET COOLIDGE

Washington, October 3.—Invitations were sent out from the White House today to the governors of the 48 states for a conference with President Coolidge October 20 to discuss law enforcement, particularly as applied to prohibition, immigration and anti-narcotics statutes.

The governors will come to Washington from their annual conference at West Baden, Ind., leaving Indianapolis the evening of October 19 and arriving in Washington shortly after noon the next day. They will go directly to the White House where they will be entertained at luncheon.

BURNS CLUB OPENS MEETING SERIES WITH BIG PROGRAM

Dr. Wightman F. Melton, head of the English department of Emory university, was principal speaker at the first full meeting of the Atlanta Burns club Wednesday night. The subject of the address was "John Greenleaf Whittier, the Robert Burns of America." Walter McElreath presided at the meeting.

Another feature of the meeting was the illustrated lecture by Admiral A. O. Wright, the last surviving naval officer of that rank of the Confederate navy. He showed the part played by the navy in the war between the states, and was enthusiastically received.

Other short speeches on the program were made by Roy S. Mather, Dr. R. S. Ledingham, J. Shond, J. H. Carroll, Andrew Fairlie, H. H. Cabiness, John M. Graham, Robert McWhorter, A. F. MacIntyre and Bond Bain.

Suicide of Child In West Feared By Satterfield

Fear that his youngest daughter, Elizabeth, has committed suicide was expressed Wednesday by J. B. Satterfield, who is in the Fulton county jail under a death sentence for the killing of his brother-in-law, R. H. Hart.

Satterfield stated that letters he had received from J. B. Mashburn, with whom his daughter was staying in Los Angeles, Cal., were to the effect that she had been missing since the middle of last August—shortly after Satterfield's arrest.

Another daughter of Satterfield, Mrs. Dorothy Tartar, who came to Atlanta to stand by her father in his trial, said that Elizabeth threatened suicide just after her father's capture. Satterfield stoutly denied any connection with the plans to "break jail," which were frustrated, saying that it was a "frame-up" in an effort to injure his cause now pending before the courts.

NEW POSTAL RECORD IS SET IN SAVANNAH

Savannah, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—Postal receipts at Savannah were larger in September than in any month in the history of the city, running $14,000 in excess of last month, or an increase of 38 per cent, it was announced today.

"Of course, I knew in a general way through whispers and rumors that some of the boys in the city thought they were planning to escape, but I never saw any of the saws nor the rope made of blankets until the officers found them in some of the cells," Satterfield stated.

The body was buried in a shallow hole in a cotton field near the Pace home. Following the coroner's inquest, the body was again disinterred today and examined. It was this examination, it is said, that established the child was normal at its birth and that its death resulted from violence. Mrs. Pace is in jail here but Mozelle Pace is being guarded at home.

CUTTER OFF TO RESCUE WRECKED SHIP'S CREW

Norfolk, Va., October 3.—The coast guard cutter Modoc has sailed from here to rescue the crew of the schooner Melbourne P. Smith, caught in a hurricane Saturday 400 miles east of Savannah. Reports received today said that all members of the crew are safe, but the vessel is a waterlogged hulk.

The distressed condition of the schooner was reported to this station by passing vessels. The hurricane which arose over the Bahamas Friday and proceeded in a northeasterly direction, caught the little sailing vessel and battered her into a wreck, dismantled her and left her a prey to the heavy seas.

The Modoc will reach the schooner some time tonight.

Mrs. Mozelle Pace and Her Daughter Accused in Colquitt.

Moultrie, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—Mrs. Lula Pace and her daughter, Mozelle Pace, were jointly indicted by the Colquitt county grand jury today for murder in connection with the death of the baby of the latter. It is alleged that an examination of the dead body of the infant revealed that its neck had been broken and skull crushed. The state contends that the baby was born Monday and killed soon thereafter.

Poison and Lure of Gold Blend to Same Old Tune

BY HARLAN S. MILLER.
Mrs. Webb's sheltered life, that Mrs. Johnston says she was impelled to jot down.

Relatives Gather.
Meanwhile, relatives of Mrs. Webb were hurrying by automobile and train from distant cities, mostly in Pennsylvania, to aid in the solution of the mystery surrounding her death and the settlement of her estate.

While all interested persons awaited word from the toxicologist, to settle whether she was poisoned, which may come Thursday or Friday, three distinct professional rows emerged from the mystery. One of them was between lawyers. One was between doctors. The third, an interpersonal outbreak, was between a doctor and a lawyer.

First, a number of attorneys, persuaded by Dr. William J. Meyer, the dead woman's attending physician, that the Westchester county district attorney was letting a crime slip through his fingers, started a movement to take the case from the hands of Prosecutor Arthur Rowland, and to ask Governor Smith to order an investigation by the attorney general.

Finally, Dr. Meyer assailed Prosecutor Rowland for introducing him to the grand jury as one "not entirely free from suspicion." Meyer said he resented the slight on his professional and personal efforts in attending physician and friend of Mrs. Webb. He said that even if no appreciable trace of poison is found, his own suspicions will remain.

HOWARD CARTER LEAVES FOR TOMB OF TUTANKHAMEN

London, October 3.—(By the Associated Press.)—Howard Carter, the American Egyptologist, left for Luxor and the Valley of the Kings today to resume his excavations at the tomb of Tutankhamen. The scientist said he had not the slightest belief that any occult influence was responsible for the death of Earl of Carnarvon, who succumbed to fever after discovering the tomb, and that he had no fears for himself in that direction.

"It is rather too much to ask me to believe that some spirit is keeping watch and ward over the dead Pharaoh, ready to wreak vengeance on anyone who goes too near," Carter said.

At Trieste he will be joined by the American experts who are to assist him in the unsealing of Tutankhamen's sarcophagus and this task will be started soon after their arrival at Luxor. Mr. Carter expects this season's work to last about four months. He reiterated his intention of leaving the mummy of this Pharaoh in his present resting place.

"If we disturbed the body," he said, "we would be no better than the tomb robbers of other days."

Self-Styled Killer Nearly Tears Down Jail in a Frenzy

Cairo, Ill., October 3.—Edward Peeler, a negro, arrested yesterday when he asserted he had shot a negro in Kosciusko, Miss., was taken to the state insane asylum at Anna today after he had obtained a riot gun and began shooting up the sheriff's office.

He attempted to burn the county jail by setting fire to his bed— Tried to hang himself with an electric light cord—

Chewed up an electric light bulb— Flooded part of the jail by tearing out some of the plumbing.

DRUID HILLS LOTS PONCE DE LEON AVENUE

BEYOND the Seaboard Air Line on Ponce de Leon avenue have just opened up that portion of Druid Hills which many people consider the most attractive portion of the entire city. These lots have been laid off with a frontage of 100 feet and extend back to a depth of 300 feet. These lots are designed for those who wish to own a home, complete with all conveniences of both city and country estate, each lot contains over two acres. All lots are supplied with water, sewer and gas connections; street paving, electric light and telephone poles run in the rear of the property. These lots are accessible to the new school building built by the city of Decatur and they are within two blocks of the main Decatur car line. The indications are that this section will be one of the choice portions of Druid Hills developed in the future.

Terms are made easy as we accept a small cash payment and take 6 per cent notes for the balance. Ask one of our salesmen to show you this new development.

Glendale Terrace

Make Your Home Site an Investment

ATLANTA'S steady growth in the general direction of Glendale Terrace makes the purchase of a building site in this neighborhood not only an investment in convenience (because of its ideal "close-in" location) but in property value as well.

Improvement of this new section now nearing completion is under our own direct supervision. In every way, the 130 lots comprising the property come up to the Adair standard of values—a standard maintained for 58 years.

Every convenience is provided: paved streets and sidewalks, water, gas, electric lights and sewerage.

Before final developments are completed, we are offering some very attractive sites as low as $2,500. You can enjoy your investment in Glendale while its value is being enhanced.

Let us know immediately if you are interested, so that you may select the lot that fills your needs. The real value of these sites plus the attractive terms we are now making means that they will not last long. Call to see us today.

JAPANESE SILK ADVANCES $35

Tokio, October 3.—Raw silk advanced another seventy yen ($35) today on the Yokohama market. The new price is 2,250 yen a bale. Sales of 1,000 bales at that price were reported.

Complaints have been received from American buyers that Japanese dealers are withholding the market, badly needed to keep mills in the United States busy this winter.

SELL MARKS BY TON.
National Bank of Belgium
Beats Cash Exchange Rates.

London, October 3.—The National Bank of Belgium has just sold 362 tons of German marks as waste paper, according to a Brussels dispatch to the Daily Express.

Acquiring the money in business transactions with Germany, the National bank found that the stocks of marks had outgrown all safes, and would need a new building to house them.

The offer of a junk dealer who accepted the marks at usual waste paper rates was 100 per cent more than their cash value at present exchange.

Australia's population is 5,634,000, which is an increase of 124,000 over 1922.
